LONDON—(INS)—The London Evening Standard today picked up a Berlin radio broadcast reporting a great Allied transport fleet massed in the harbor of Bizerte.

(By Associated Press)

Germany's war foundries in the Ruhr underwent a violent new storm of bombs before dawn today as hundreds of RAF block-buster raiders attacked the steel center of Muelheim (Pop. 136,000) and returned by the light of great fires still burning from an assault on nearby Krefeld 24 hours earlier.

DNB, the German news agency, said the British also hit Oberhausen in the Ruhr, inflicting heavy damage, and bitterly characterized the attacks as "terror raids."

An RAF communique listed 35 bombers as missing — nine less than in Monday night's raid by more than 700 planes—for a two-day toll of 79 aircraft.

The ancient city of Muelheim is the site of important steel rolling mills, foundries and engine works. It lies seven miles west of battered Essen, home of the giant Krupp munitions works.

In the Mediterranean, the paralyzing three-way attack on Italy from Allied bases in North Africa, the Middle East and Malta apparently slackened yesterday, but Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced that RAF Wellingtons again blasted Salerno on the Italian mainland Monday night.

The night raid followed up an intensive hammering of seven Italian mainland cities in daylight Monday, ranging from bomb-scarred Naples, Italy's biggest

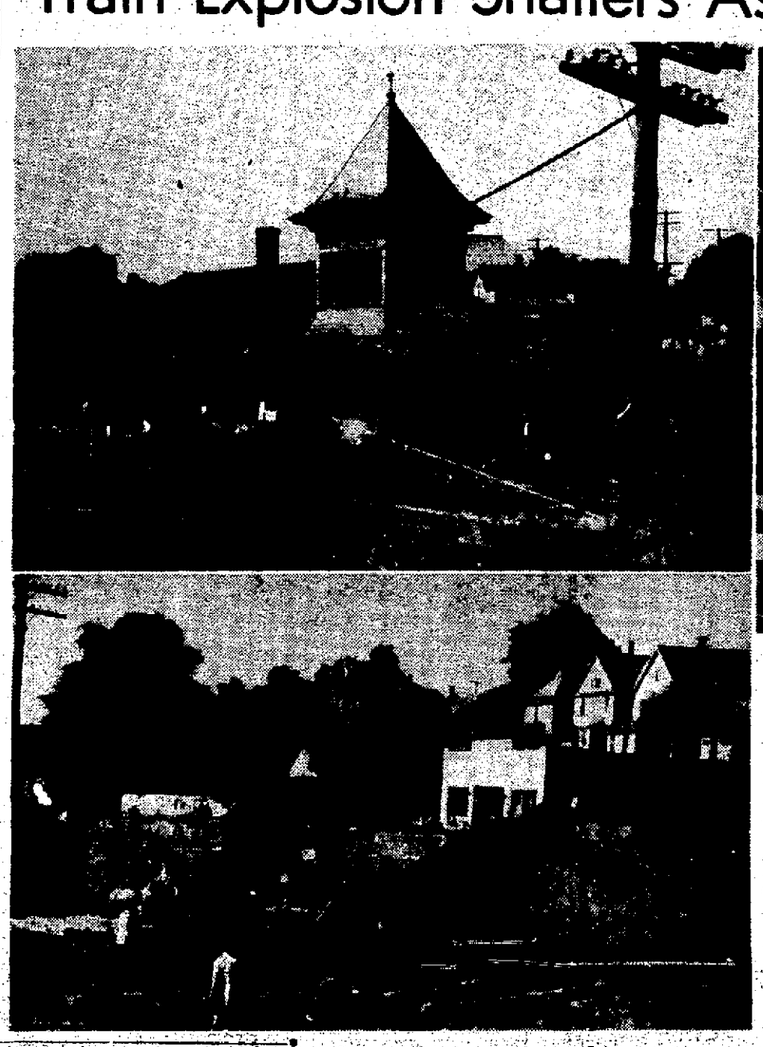
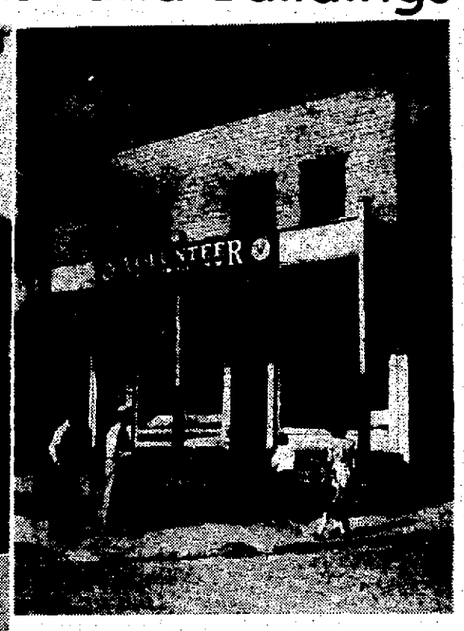
Train Explosion Shatters Ashland Buildings





These pictures show the damage caused by a spectacular explosion at the Erie railroad depot in Ashland early today. Top left, repair crews at work clearing away debris at the station. Part of the siding and all of the windows were blown in by the force of the concussion. Bottom left, all that is left of the steel baggage coach in which the explosion occurred. A store on Cottage avenue, 200 yards from the station with all the windows, including two plate glass frames in the front, shattered. More than 500 windows in scores of homes were broken. Railroad officials this morning estimated that damage, exclusive of contents of the baggage coach, would "run less than $15,000." Traffic over the road was held up for more than three hours while firemen and railroad workmen cleared away the wreckage.

COAL STRIKE ENDS, OCT. 31 DEADLINE SET

Lewis Orders Men Back To Pits as Long as U. S. Retains Control.

ISSUE STILL UNSETTLED

UMW Expected To Take Fight For Portal-To-Portal Pay To Courts.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The United Mine Workers' decision to dig coal for the government until Oct. 31 ended the nation's third general wartime mine strike today, but operators and others protested the main issue was merely postponed, not settled.

The back-to-work order of UMW President John L. Lewis and his policy committee was conditional, and a prolonged fight was foreshadowed. Besides fixing a new, albeit more distant, deadline, Lewis told the government in effect if it wanted coal it could not restore direction of the mines to their owners.

His statement also carried a broad indication the miners would resort to the courts to obtain the pay for underground travel time which they failed to get from the war labor board.

A statement issued in behalf of the Appalachian operators declared the action of the UMW policy committee "is in direct violation of the war labor board's directive of June 18.

"If the president," said the operators, referring to Mr. Roosevelt, "permits the mines to be operated under the terms laid down by John L. Lewis, the main issue goes unresolved. Nothing is settled. The present strike is merely postponed. The main question now is, can Mr. Lewis continue to defy the sole agency designated by the United States government to make final determinations in labor disputes."

The immediate reaction of WLB Chairman William S. Davis to the miners' decision was expressed in these words:

"I take Mr. Lewis' statement to mean the production of coal will be resumed under the conditions ordered by the war labor board, and I think that's all the country is interested in. It appears that the new deadline is

Six Others Are Injured; Entire City Shaken Up

Cause Undetermined as Four Inquiries Get Underway; Fireworks Shipment And Practice Grenades Were Being Loaded In Car.

(By Staff Correspondent)

ASHLAND—An explosion in a baggage coach of an Erie railroad express train killed two men, injured six others and broke more than 500 windows in scores of homes and business places here early today.

Cause of the blast was not immediately determined but railroad men said it occurred while a shipment of fireworks and army practice grenades was being loaded into the car.

Fire broke out immediately after the blast and flames swept into the two-story Erie depot. Force of the explosion, heard for 11 miles around, crumpled the front end of the station.

A four-way investigation was launched this morning into cause of the blast. A railroad official said that evidence so far failed to indicate sabotage.

A Federal Bureau of Investigation agent arrived on the scene last night. Arriving this morning were investigators for the Interstate Commerce Commission and the state bureau of explosives. Erie railroad investigators joined the FBI last night.

The two men killed outright in the blast which happened at 12:50 a. m. were Eugene McMurray, 42, of Ashland, and James Velie, 26, of Meadville, Pa. Both were Railway Express employes.

Witnesses said McMurray, who evidently had been loading the fireworks into the car, was found dead on the sidewalk bordering the station. They said both his legs and one arm were blown off. Velie was thrown out the other side of the car. His body was found on an embankment north of the station.

Six other trainmen were injured. One is in a critical condition at Samaritan hospital and condition of two others was reported "good."

Seriously hurt was Henry Duffner, 51, of Ashland. The other two are Oliver Highman, 30, of Ashland, and Clarence Beck, 40, of Marion. All suffered lacerations, bruises, burns and shock.

Receiving minor injuries were three others, Merle Crandall and William Gray, both of Ashland, and an unidentified man. They were treated by physicians and permitted to go home.

The explosion blew the steel top out of the baggage car and split into three parts. One big piece of steel landed on Cottage street 200 yards away. Another evidently hit the station, glanced off and landed in the station yard.

WILLING TO CLOSE STREETS

Residents Want MC-1 Coating on Thoroughfares Despite Traffic Inconvenience.

Mansfielders are willing to stay off the streets in front of their homes for two or three days to get the streets coated with dust control material, Mayor W. J. Locke was convinced today after receiving dozens of requests for anti-dust treatment.

One truckload of gummy MC-1 material, a war-time substitute for street oil, will be spead on Cline avenue, Wood street, and East Longview avenue within a few days as an experiment the mayor said, and other unpaved streets in the city probably will be treated later.

A call for public opinion on the dust treating problem brought a large number of calls from property owners, all of whom are willing to put away their cars for a while if they can eliminate the dust nuisance.

The mayor explained that use of the heavy tar-like material on streets will make it necessary to close them to traffic for at least two days until the street surface absorbs most of the anti-dust coating.

The city this week was authorized by the federal government to purchase 70,000 gallons of the MC-1 material to be trucked here from Cleveland. Road oil which has been used by the city for many years is not available because of transportation restrictions.

FEARS LASTING FOOD SHORTAGE

Bromfield Warns There May Be Food Riots In Large Cities In Talk at Columbus.

Predicting a food shortage for the United States which may become "permanent" and result in food riots in larger cities next winter, Author-Farmer Louis Bromfield told the Trade Association Executives' conference in Columbus today that America faces the prospect of feeding the entire world for two or three years after the war.

"It is true that for five years after the war, no matter how much food we produce, it won't be enough," he said, according to dispatches from Columbus.

Bromfield described the New Deal's "program of scarcity" as "short-sighted" and blamed it for much of the food production problem that faces the nation. He said a well-administered program of nation-wide and world-wide distribution would have solved our over-supply problem in pre-war days.

Worse Than Dynamite, Says Eye-Witness to Ashland Blast

ASHLAND—"I've seen pictures of dynamite exploding, but it was a lot worse than any I'd ever seen," was the way Mrs. H. M. Parks, of Savannah road, near Ashland, described the spectacular explosion in an Erie railroad baggage car at the Ashland depot early today.

Flames shot into the air. Debris was scattered all about the place and was showered on our car. I've never seen anything like it. It was eerie," she said.

Mrs. Parks was sitting with her husband in their automobile at the Cottage avenue crossing waiting for the train, which was being loaded, to move so they could continue on their way home.

"At the first sound of the explosion Mr. Parks leaped from the car and ran to the Simmons Manufacturing company on Ohio street and asked them to call the fire department," she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Parks were among the few witnesses who saw the actual explosion. They were returning home after visiting friends in Ashland.

Mrs. Parks said after her husband sounded the alarm he rushed to the station "about the time of the second blast that shattered the station," and assisted the few who were on the scene in removing injured persons.

She explained that the first explosion sent pieces of the railroad coach flying in all directions, and added that the second blast a few minutes later appeared to be the one that spread the flames to the station resulting in considerable damage to the building.

Most of Ashland was bedded down for the night and sleeping peacefully when it was rudely awakened by an explosion which rocked the town.

The wailing of the fire siren following the blast was all some of the townspeople heard and

Rickenbacker on Moscow Mission, Soviets Reveal

MOSCOW — (U.P.) — Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, famous American flier, arrived in Moscow several days ago on an undisclosed mission, it was revealed today.

The Russian news agency Tass said Rickenbacker was in the Soviet capital as a "representative of the War Department."

Tass disclosed Rickenbacker's presence by including his name among those who attended a presentation ceremony yesterday in the office of Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov when 60 American medals were awarded to Russian army and navy men.

The last official mission in which Rickenbacker was reported engaged was the South Pacific inspection tour conducted for Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson in October, 1942. Rickenbacker's plane was forced down and the World War I ace, together with all but one member of his crew, was rescued after 21 days adrift on life rafts.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Office of Price Administration today asked housewives to "spread out" the use of their K, L, M, and N red stamps, which expire next Wednesday, in order to avoid a last minute rush at retail stores.

Pointing out there is nothing to be gained in waiting until the last few days to use these red stamps, OPA said that housewives shopping well ahead of the expiration deadline will find stores less crowded and a greater variety of meats, fats, oils and cheeses in the counters.

Finds Way Clear for City to Meet Share of Airport Cost

The Mansfield Chamber of Commerce legislative committee has found that the city will have no trouble financing its share of the cost of the airport expansion project, either by transferring present city funds or by issuing bonds without the necessity of a public vote, it was learned today.

Although the committee's opinion has not been given to council's finance committee, airport finances have been under study by the Chamber of Commerce group for the past eight weeks and at least two or three legal ways to raise the city's share of the airport cost were mentioned today by members of the Chamber of Commerce group.

Probably the easiest method would be to obtain court permission to make transfers from surplus city funds into an airport fund, one committee member said. Another would be to issue bonds within the 10-mill tax limitation to provide money to buy airport land.

Committee representatives declined to mention city departments from which funds can be transferred, adding that they wanted to "hold off attacks on the transfers as long as possible."

City council is expected to take no action to raise funds to buy land for the airport until Civil Aeronautics authority engineers arrive to designate their choice for an airport site and tell the city how much land will be needed.

Members of the Chamber of Commerce legislative committee are all judges or attorneys. Former Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston is chairman. Members are Municipal Judge H. H. Schettler, City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner, Attys. William F. Black, R. E. Hutchison, and C. H. Henkel.

Heat, City's Industrial Pace Put Strain on Water Supply

The heat wave and Mansfield's stepped-up industrial operations are taxing the city's water supply to capacity, forcing the Maxwell Springs pumping station to produce more than six million gallons daily, O. C. Kalbfleisch, city waterworks superintendent, said today.

The demand for water has increased steadily since early in June, passing the six-million-gallon mark two days ago, Kalbfleisch said. Abnormal heat has increased the demand for water in homes, while the city's industrial plants are using more as they swing into peak war production, he said.

"It used to be possible for us to catch up at the pumping stations as the demand for water dropped over the week-ends, but lately we've had to keep the supply up even over Saturday and Sunday," the waterworks superintendent added.

Meanwhile, Mansfield's water supply was praised today by L. E. Enslow of New York, editor of the Water Works and Sewage maga-

Ham Can Be Served In Many Ways

By BETSY NEWMAN

It's a game, this making our meat ration go as far as possible. I've always been interested in seeing how far I could make foods go. One time I bought a 24 (and a fraction) pound sack of flour and kept track of all the different things I made with it. They made an impressive list. I like to do the same with a piece of meat. It is surprising how many different kinds of dishes you can get out of a fair-sized piece of meat, ham for instance.

Today's Menu.

Roast Ham Scalloped Potatoes
Young Carrots and Peas
Watercress Lettuce Salad
Strawberry Shortcake Coffee

Roast Ham.

4 lb. end of ham
½ cup juice from spiced fruit
Or 1 tsp. whole cloves
¼ cup brown sugar
1 tsp. dry mustard

Wipe ham with a damp cloth and put it in roasting pan and into the oven which has been preheated to 300 degrees F. For "ovenized" ham allow about 20 minutes' cooking to the pound; for non-ovenized meat, allow at least 30 minutes a pound. An hour before the ham is to be done, pour over it the ½ cup spiced fruit juice and continue baking Or take skin off, if it is still on, stick cloves in fat at intervals then cover with brown sugar, then with mustard, and return to oven to finish roasting. Or take ¼ cup cider vinegar and ¼ cup water, add ½ cup brown sugar, some mixed spices or ½ teaspoon whole cloves, cook for 10 minutes, then pour mixture over ham and continue roasting.

Slice ham cold for next meal, also use in sandwiches Make a ham omelet for lunch or dinner next, then serve some of the smaller, thin slices of ham on lima beans cooked in tomatoes Diced and creamed the small pieces of ham are nice served over toast or baked potatoes; add a little dry mustard to the cream sauce for this. Small "chunks" are nice in scalloped potatoes. The small pieces of ham may also be cooked with rice Here is the recipe:

Ham With Rice.

2 tbsps. ham fat
1 cup rice
2 cups boiling water
1 cup minced ham
2 tbsps prepared mustard
2 tbsps minced parsley

Heat fat, add rice and stir over low heat 3 minutes, then add water bring to boiling point, cover and simmer over low heat about 15 minutes, until rice is tender and water is almost absorbed. Add ham and mustard and stir lightly with fork so as not to break rice and ham is thoroughly mixed through rice. Put in serving dish and sprinkle with parsley.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Dicky's eyes opened wide, and his lips formed an involuntary round O, as, I told myself amusedly, a startled small boy's might have done. He never loses his poise or shows any surprise when strangers are present. But he is distinctly off guard with me, and also with Katharine.

"What do you mean?" he asked. Then his mouth relaxed into a wide grin. "Oh, boy!" he exclamed. "Does dad want me to take on the job of meeting, and deflating, the 'Wilderness Woman,' if it's possible to deflate her?"

"Exactly," I said.

"He wants her to come up here then?" he asked. "I suppose she will be expecting to see you and Katharine here."

"That's the general idea," I replied. Father doesn't intend to let her know there's any hitch in her plot to have Katharine come to the Myers apartment alone at 2 o'clock. At the last minute, he's going to send a telegraph messenger with a wire saying Katharine is ill, and will have to keep the appointment the next night at the same time."

"But she won't, will she?" Dicky asked quickly.

To Trap Ruth.

"Father thinks not," I said "He hopes to trap Ruth finally at her appointment at Hal Meredith's office tomorrow afternoon. But at 2-o'clock tomorrow morning when she gets that wire he expects her to come to the hotel and up to this apartment, using the facilities for getting here which Milner will afford her."

"Nice bird, Milner!" Dicky commented. "Will I ever be glad when I see the gyves upon his wrists!"

"You'll not be alone in your joy," I told him dryly. "Of course father could stop Ruth if he wished. But I think he wants her to come up for two reasons, one to let Milner believe that his pipe lines are working, the other, I really believe is an impish desire to have you deal with her in your own inimitable fashion. I told him about your memorable interview with Carolyn."

Dicky looked a bit abashed.

"Carolyn wasn't really fair game, poor kid!" he said, "although she did need a lathering, if ever a brat did. But I've always felt that I laid on the old hickory stick a bit too hard.

"But this baby,—this Ruth Hayes—this far famed 'Wilderness Woman;'" His voice fairly dripped venom, overlaid with the anticipation of a pleasurably sinister mission before him. "It certainly will be a pleasure to remove the cuticle from her, inch by inch." He leaned back in his chair, and looked around the living room of the balcony apartment, as if he were a general planning a campaign.

"Think I'll have dad plant a couple of his men on that balcony," he said. "The door will be bolted on this side, but I can easily slip the bolts if I wish."

"You think she will be bringing men with her?" I said breathlessly

"Not in here," he replied. "She wouldn't be so crude But it would be perfectly in accord with her style—and Milner's—to have a couple of strong arm beauties settling themselves on that balcony after she gets here, ready for any command she might give them."

Tests Window Bolts.

He rose and walked into the bedroom and I saw him testing the bolts on the windows leading to the balcony which had been reinforced after my experience with the gangster who once had spied upon me from there.

"These are all right," he said. "And that bolt on the camouflaged door is all right, although I imagine Dad's men will be in that suite However, we'll take no chances Now, the next question is, where are we going to park the girls?"

"Anywhere you please," Katharine said "I have no desire to see or hear that woman, and I have full faith in your ability to deal with her."

Dicky made a deep bow, sweeping an imaginary plumed hat to the floor.

"Merci, madame!" he said. "In that case, the best thing for both of you would be to go into the bedroom, lock the door and go to sleep."

"Just a second," I said. "You're not going to park me anywhere."

Sleep Habits Should Be Consistent

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Many tots do not get nearly enough sleep in summer because they waken too early. Even some older children under ten or twelve get up too early. The lack of sufficient sleep grows more serious when, because of great heat, the child is put to bed late.

My special bulletin on "Sleep", to be had without cost by writing me in care of this paper enclosing a three-cent stamp on a self addressed envelope, considers this and other sleep problems in detail. My chart on desirable hours of sleep at various age levels may also be had in this way. Here are a few practical suggestions:

Find out from this chart how late your child must sleep in the morning in order to get as much sleep each night (including day nap) as he should.

Tell him just once, clearly, tonight that he must not get up tomorrow morning until you call for him or the clock rings. The latter is better, being more definite and dependable.

Be on hand when he is likely to awaken and want to get up. Let everything else go tomorrow morning and on subsequent mornings until this matter is settled permanently. It may take a week or two.

The moment he rises to his hands, knees or feet, spank him saying No just once and pushing him down if necessary. If he rises again right away spank him again. Proceed in this fashion till he stays down while you are right with him.

Then go outside his room with his door ajar so you can see him and he can't see you. Immediately smack him again should he rise Continue with this treatment until he learns to obey Be sure to do this without exception tomorrow morning and the next till he learns always to stay down until the bell rings. Say nothing about sleep With the world so unattractive he will finally go back to sleep, provided there is no doubt in his mind that you can be relied on to be consistent Don't begin this training until you are able to follow the instructions to the letter.

Hold your child under six or seven to a regular afternoon nap Children over 6 or 7 who are very active or nervous should also be required to lie down and be quiet for an hour or two daily during the summer.

Q. My child two years old does not talk very much. He can say mamma, daddy and about a dozen words altogether.

A. He probably will talk enough in due time. Perhaps he has had so effective sign language which his parents obey, that he has not felt much need for formal language. He should spend more time with children his age or older and you should read a great deal to him. It might be wise to have his hearing tested by an expert.

Q. We should like to have our youngster now beginning speech learn to call us Daddy and Mother instead of by our first names. What is a good way?

A. Merely call each other Daddy and Mother in the child's presence and refer to each other in this fashion.

HOW TO MAKE COFFEE STRETCH

Good news! Takes surprisingly little of a rich coffee like this new BOSCUL to make a swell cup. Measure carefully.

Keep that "mile-high" Boscul flavor fresh! Store in tightly covered jar (in refrigerator if possible).

Make only as much as you need—it's too good to waste!

Buy correct grind—follow directions on label.

Buy BOSCUL—now richer, more full-bodied than ever. Blended of expensive mountain coffees to give you more enjoyment per cup!

"The Authority on Authorities"

NEARLY ALWAYS BEST

There is one opening lead which is nearly always the best to make against an opponent's suit contract, when possible, and which therefore justly ranks as the No 1 combination in every standard table of leads. That is the lead of an ace-king combination. Only on the rarest of occasions should something else be led, if you have that top sequence. If you have the slightest doubt about the situation confronting you, that lead will generally give you a chance to look at the dummy and get your bearings without any appreciable risk of loss.

North finally got wise to the fact that his partner was indulging in some crazy psychic bidding when he opened that deal with his 1-Club, and so passed the 5-Diamonds double, reckoning the side would probably be set plenty.

West, remembering his partner's double of the 5-Clubs, decided to lead that suit, which he did, his 8 The club A and K promptly furnished discards of South's two spades, and the diamond J was finessed to the A. Now the spade K got trumped by South, his diamond K dropped the last hostile trumps together, and he had only one more trick to lose, to the heart A, so that he made his contract.

If West had first laid down his spade K, he would have seen the situation, and would have refrained from leading clubs, making sure first that he scored two spade tricks and his heart A. By so doing, he would have beaten the contract two tricks.

Tomorrow's Problem.

What is correct play of this deal at 4-Clubs by South, the spade J being led, and at 3-No Trumps by North after East leads the 6 of his partner's bid heart suit?

TEST GROWING OF DANDELIONS TO GET RUBBER

Seeds Brought From Russia Thrive In New Jersey, Government Finds.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Americans can and have taught the Russians plenty about engineering but it looks as if the Russians have taught the Americans at least one trick in the production of rubber.

At the rubber plantation of the United States Rubber company at Paramus, Bergen county, New Jersey, there recently was harvested a first crop of kok-saghyz, a species of dandelion from which the Soviets extract most of their natural rubber.

Under government auspices, seeds were imported from Russia and planted in each of the 48 states in an effort to determine where the plant would thrive best.

Dr. John McGavak, United States Rubber scientist, said the seeds had done "very well" in New Jersey, where they were planted July 20 on an acre of ground. The first harvest, he declared, showed clearly that kok-saghyz thrives in the New Jersey climate.

Since most of the rubber content of the plant comes from its roots, the Jersey crop was harvested with spades instead of scythes. Long after the leaves have been killed by the frost, the roots continue to grow in the frozen ground.

An annual plant, kok-saghyz yields rubber in six to 12 months. Russia has 100,000 acres under cultivation with a yield of 125 pounds an acre, or one ton from 16 acres.

If the plant thrives as well in the United States as it does in the Soviet Union, it will take 16,000,000 acres to yield the amount of rubber scheduled to be produced synthetically in this country by 1944.

But the United States, of course, has other sources of synthetic rubber, such as petroleum and grain. However, the disadvantage of using too much petroleum is readily apparent in times when it is needed for gasoline and oil. Our grain supplies appear to be virtually unlimited, but some experts say the production of rubber from grain is a more expensive process.

Nevertheless, the synthetic rubber program now is beginning to shape up so well that experts agree there should be an ample supply of it for our armed forces next year, with perhaps some left over for essential civilian needs.

When the rubber problem is finally solved, Russia will have to be credited with an assist and not even the scientists who labor for American industry are likely to deny the Soviets whatever satisfaction they may gain.

It is just another instance of what international co-operation, as opposed to international competition, can produce.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

Demand Spurs Fish Industry In New Jersey

WILDWOOD, N. J.—(UP)—Added to the crop of Southern New Jersey farms this year has been the silvery harvest yielded by the sea to meet the greatest demand in the history of the state's commercial fisheries.

A glittering stream of fish hauled from the Atlantic by the cramped fingers and backs of the workers of this newest war industry pours onto South Jersey fishing wharves at the rate of 250,000 pounds a week to replace meats in the nation's diet.

Stories likely to raise an old-timer's eyebrows are told of single boat catches running up to 50,000 and 60,000 pounds despite a serious labor shortage 'some fishermen hope to solve by hiring service men to work the nets.

"Our workers are making more money than they ever did in their lives," said Jesse Laudman of the Cold Springs Fisheries. "They are averaging $8 a day. If we could get the men we could bring in even more fish. I've asked that soldiers and sailors on furlough be allowed to work on the fishing boats to get a crack at the $8 a day, and I am waiting for a government ruling."

AIRMEN LEARN TO FIGHT FIRE

NEW ORLEANS—(INS)—Every Wednesday afternoon a yellow training plane bursts into flames at the Naval Air station of the lake front at New Orleans.

Asbestos-clad firefighters rush into the leaping flames and pull a body from the cockpit.

Anxious citizens call to make inquiries.

The Navy public relations office explains that "there's nothing to it."

The military secret?

The plane, actually only a framework with half-wings, is ignited by a special fire-crew once a week to train the navy's fire-fighters to save pilots, and crews and fight aircraft fires.

...N THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

...DON—(By Wireless)—The mood in England ...pears to be moving in favor of a hard peace, ...ing up the "unconditional surrender" stipu... at Casablanca. The best indication of that ... action of the Labor party conference in ...ng strong resolutions which in effect hold ...ajority of the German people responsible for ...ng the Nazis to gain and hold power.

...ter the last war there appeared what a diplo...matic friend of mine in Washington calls the "dear darlings" attitude toward defeated Germany. With Italy we seem to have taken the line that the Italian people have been held captive by Mussolini against their will, and that we are really allied with them in trying to smash his regime. There appears to be very little tendency to take such a line with Germany. The action of the Labor party conference in Britain ...Clapper ...l seem to clinch the movement in this country ...d Vansittartism, which is the British name ...dvocacy of a hard peace.

...feel warranted in saying that government ...ers here feel there can be no weakening in ...Casablanca unconditional-surrender position, ...hat we won't even make an effort to drive ...dge between Hitler and the German people ...vill hammer the whole business until all is ...

This is contrary to the policy pursued by ...row Wilson last time; also to the feeling of ... private individuals that such an attitude as ...ing taken now gives no opportunity for en...ging a crack in the German home front. It ...apparent when I was in Sweden that Goeb...was using all the Vansittartism, every scrap ...lied vengeance talk, to frighten the German ...e into clinging to Hitler as their only protec...rom implacable Allied fury.

...hen blood pressure is reduced from the fore... attitude, a somewhat more realistic judg...comes out, namely, that no matter what we ...ow in the heat of war anger, the most diffi...cult thing will be to keep the democracies to any kind of consistent policy toward Germany after the war.

Everybody will want to return home. The democracies don't like to maintain armies of occupation anywhere. The British also remember their experience after the last war, when British soldiers occupying Germany tended to become sympathetic toward the German people.

Some of the more thoughtful people of influence here are convinced that the problem of the so-called re-education of Germany will be a most trying one for the democracies. In the first place, some of the Nazis' neighbors, such as Czechoslovakia, Poland and the Netherlands, have old scores to pay off and do not want too much interference from the big powers in going about it. They consider themselves as having first claim. In other words, they are not particularly pleased over the prospect of large squads of American military administrators, trained in the army's Charlottesville school, taking over on the continent. You hear some of them say that this is a business the Americans can never understand, and that it had better be left to the Europeans.

Furthermore, the question of what is to be taught in the German schools is a matter of practical difficulty. Obviously it is not desirable that the oncoming generation of Germans should use textbooks written by our side. We cannot make them believe such books. We might force our own version of 20th century history on them, but they will reject it even while the teacher is reading the lesson and remarking with a sneer, "That's what the book says." Such attempted forcible education is unthinkable.

One suggestion that is meeting favor here is that Swiss textbooks be used. Switzerland has been neutral for many years. Her textbooks in German would be usable now without problems of translating. No argument of unfairness would be possible from the German point of view.

These are questions that must be decided within the coming year, because the day is not too far off when the victors will actually have to decide what to do about the defeated Germans in countless respects.

SEN. WHEELER REPORTS DRAFT QUOTAS LOWER

Further Delay In Induction of Fathers Foreseen as Result.

(By United Press)

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — The house military affairs committee today plans to ask the war manpower commission and selective service to clarify at once recent conflicting statements on the drafting of fathers for military service.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A further postponement in the induction of fathers was in prospect today with Sen. Wheeler (D) Mont., disclosing that he has been informed that the August military draft quota has been reduced from 238,000 to 150,000 men.

Wheeler also revealed that he has been informed that proportionate cuts will be made in draft calls in succeeding months as other indications of a delay in the induction of married men with children came from high selective service and manpower officials.

In a message to the 35th governors' conference in Columbus, Ohio, Manpower Chief Paul V. McNutt said that fathers will be taken only when there are no more single men to be had who can properly be spared from vital occupations.

Major Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national draft director, also told the conference that fathers will be called only when it is to the national interest.

Action of the War Manpower Commission in recently limiting occupational deferments for men between the ages of 18 to 25 to a six months period delayed any general call for fathers at least to Oct. 1.

By reducing the draft quotas beginning in August, as disclosed by Wheeler, the call of fathers to the colors is expected to be postponed still further.

Draft quotas were expected to be reduced, but not so soon. McNutt recently told congress that the rate of induction would be cut 60 per cent after December.

Wheeler's disclosure that quotas would be cut came after he took the senate floor to protest against the drafting of married men with dependents and attacked the "waste, inefficiency and confusion" in the administration's handling of the war program on the home front. He called upon congress to settle the manpower and other questions.

Wheeler said that "fathers can fight more successfully—more effectively—and more permanently for the welfare of the nation by fighting on the home front."

WARNS BUREAUS SAPPING RIGHTS OF AMERICANS

Utah Governor Declares That Bureaucrats Plan To Rule Post-War Business.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — Federal bureaucracy, sapping the sovereign rights of Americans and entrusted with a large portion of the postwar planning, already is making plans for taking over public services after the peace and regulating business on a scale hitherto unknown, Gov. Herbert R. Maw of Utah said today.

Speaking before a closing session of the 35th annual governors conference, Maw said that "the handwriting is on the wall" and federal bureaus are making "extensive plans for the postwar period."

"Today the bureaus are non-political," Maw said. "They owe allegiance to no party. They are affected by no elections. They are not controlled by the will of the public. Yet they are one of the strongest single political influences in the nation."

The average citizen grumbles a lot, Maw said, but has demonstrated his willingness to relinquish temporarily many of his privileges, but he does not want these restrictions to continue after the war.

"It is most natural, therefore, that he should be concerned when he learns that a large portion of the post-war planning is being done through those very agencies that are now responsible for limiting his personal freedoms," Maw continued.

Because the bureau system—"a child of the administration of one of our political parties which was nurtured to maturity by the other"—is so completely out of harmony with American Democratic principles, Maw said he would urge the conference to set up machinery which would create a new federal-state relationship.

He suggested that as far as possible local control over domestic problems should be returned. Governors should be designated instead of bureaus as agents to carry out federal road building programs.

Such procedure could be followed with welfare, work, unemployment and other federal aid projects with "far greater economy" and done as successfully as was the selective service.

"I am sure the finances of the nation would be safeguarded under such a plan," Maw said. "In the first place, the huge sums spent for administrative costs of bureaus would be greatly reduced."

...AIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

...W YORK—Pursuing, in her column, the subject of the Connally-Smith bill to moderate the ...ous practices of the union racketeer, Mrs. ...or Roosevelt writes: "In writing the other ...about the section in the anti-strike bill which ...ot permit labor unions to make political con...tions, I did not make it clear that there are ...ctions on corporations also."

...o, she didn't. In fact, Mrs. Roosevelt gave the impression that while unions were forbidden to make political contributions, big business corporations would be allowed to do so. And it cannot be represented on her behalf that she was misinformed or incompletely informed either because she preceded her misrepresentation with the statement "I read the anti-strike bill through yesterday" and that bill contains in plain language a provision which forbids such contributions by any ...ration. That isn't all, either, for the corrupt ...ices law already forbids corporations to con...te to political funds and, as the New York ...s quickly pointed out to Mrs. Roosevelt, that ...remains on the books after the war whereas ...forbiddance against union contributions is ...d to the period of the emergency.

Pegler

...was only after the Times caught this mis...ment that Mrs. Roosevelt hedged away from ...riginal position with the remark that she "did ...nake is clear that there is a restriction on ...rations also." She makes no mention of the ...pt practices act but it is fair to assume that ...e who has been as active in politics as this ...has, knows of the existence of this law and ...s what it means.

...e first story was the one on which Mrs. ...evelt tossed out a proposal that political cam...s be financed out of the public treasury and ...candidates be limited equally in their radio ...and their advertising space. This is a scheme ...would enable her husband to swamp any ...through the operations of the political ma... of which she is a very aggressive member, ...chine composed of countless job-holders draw...their compensation from the public taxes, ...it him to make unlimited use of the radio ...narational time by the device of styling his ...ime campaign speeches "fireside chats" and ...rts to the people" and establish the cherished Communist principle of limitation of newspaper advertising.

The Communist-New Deal element has been pushing this proposal from one direction or another for years for the purpose of starving to death the free, independent, competitive press of the United States which is the best press in the world, and its reappearance in this guise is a ruse because the fact is that candidates for offices of any importance are given plenty of space in the news coverage and do not want to buy it from the advertising department. But regardless of whether they do buy much or little space, the trick in this proposal is to give the Communist-New Deal element a beachhead, so to speak, in the campaign to demolish the American free press and substitute for it the corrupt propaganda press which lives on subsidies wrung from the faceless masses by union bosses and lives only to extol them and promote their evil careers and vilify all who oppose them.

It is a grievous mistake to laugh off the proposals which appear from time to time in Mrs. Roosevelt's column as though they were the mere, unconsidered prattle of a naive person. Mrs. Roosevelt is a thorough politician whose political methods and ethics are those of the New Deal and she offers her suggestions to test public opinion in preparation for their introduction as New Deal measures of government.

To return to the subject of campaign contributions by unions, it must be understood, although Mrs. Roosevelt would not go out of her way to tell you as much, that her political party and the European political schemes and governmental methods which it is constantly pressing on the American people, are the chief and almost the sole beneficiaries of such contributions. People seem to think that John L. Lewis' Indian gift of $500,000 in 1936 was the only one and that, with Lewis disgruntled, the situation dissolves. But that is not so.

Old Dan Tobin, the Tammany-type Holy Joe of the teamsters' union, ambitious for power and honors, gave liberally out of his union's treasury and, although he was shouldered out of the cabinet by Frances Perkins, Mrs. Roosevelt's appointee, he finally did sun his vanity for a spell in the role of assistant to the president at $10,000 a year on top of his union income of about $40,000. There are many more instances, including a vote of Sidney Hillman's clothing workers in Boston to compel 5,000 members to "donate" to the Roosevelt party funds in 1940 at the rate of $1 from each man and 50 cents from each woman.

SEES OBSTACLE TO BIG PLANES

Expert Says They'll Be O. K. on Water, But Larger Ones Doubtful on Land.

(By Associated Press)

AKRON — A picture of aviation's future different from the usual dreams was presented here today by Dr J. C. Hunsaker, chairman of the national advisory committee for aeronautics, the leading scientific promoter of American aviation.

Giant land planes will be slow in coming, but bigger flying boats may be expected soon. One of the most likely revolutions will be turbine engines driven by hot gases.

Dr. Hunsaker said the barrier to giant land planes is the landing gear. In the present state of the art of building wheels, brakes and landing mechanism the weight of much bigger planes cannot be supported.

There will be, said Dr. Hunsaker, no sense in putting a dozen engines into an airplane, because the complications introduced become too prohibitive. But six-engine flying boats are likely soon. They don't have the landing gear handicaps.

Recent improvements in gas alone promise to eclipse the Diesel motor for a time and hold back production of large Diesels.

"I can assure you," he said to scientists at the dedication of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company's new research laboratory, "that there are many promising new ideas at the laboratory level which will be applied."

Up and Down THE STREET

Pupils in Mansfield schools have good memories when it comes to returning books borrowed at the public library. The boys and girls have borrowed 10,666 books in the past two years and lost or failed to return $59 worth during that period, the library has reported to Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller. The board of education will pay the library for the loss. Pupils must have read less last year, obtaining only 5,235 books at the library as compared with 5,431 in 1941-42, the report showed.

Word from the Ohio State university bureau of public relations to the News-Journal states that two students of Mansfield Senior high school ranked high in scholarship tests given by the university during the spring months. Ralph John Tykodi, who was second in scholastic work in the graduating class, finished among the top 25 boys in the state who took the general scholarship examination. David R. Weimer, top English pupil at Senior high, finished in a six place tie in the senior English test given by the university. Tykodi is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Tykodi, 84 Brickman avenue, and Weimer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Weimer, Mansfield R. D. 6.

The city parks' summer playground program has added another new feature for the more than 600 children who have registered for activities. The Mansfield Public Library mobile unit will visit the three parks every other Tuesday starting next Tuesday. The "moving library" will visit Prospect park at 1 p. m., Liberty park at 2:15 p. m. and John's park at 3:15 p. m. The children will have a story hour at these times, conducted by the supervisor. Children will be permitted to take out books, which will be returned after two weeks. The mobile library is equipped with more than 500 books.

PREDICTS ADDED NEWSPRINT CUT

Former WPB Official Expects Further Slash During Fourth Quarter.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—W. G. Chandler, until recently director of the War Production Board's printing and publishing division, declared today further mandatory newsprint curtailments are in prospect for the fourth quarter of this year "unless circulation and advertising volume decline."

He told the International Circulation Managers' association "reality is compelling those charged with a fair distribution of available supplies for newspapers to be busily engaged in planning further reductions in allowable quotas of newsprint.

"This immediate five per cent cut will take care of the exigencies of the moment. War economics may develop reduction in advertising that will cause newsprint to balance with a known decline in production. All the experts predicted advertising losses in late 1942—and for each successive month of 1943. But each month, media records tells a different story.

"Unless circulation and advertising volume decline, your industry advisory group will be compelled to recommend to WPB further mandatory curtailments for the fourth quarter of 1943.

"Never in your business life has your responsibility been greater to use your judgment, experience and thinking to properly distribute your newspaper. In peacetime years, your task was to distribute and sell the greatest quantity of paper in terms of printed newspapers, without too great regard for how or when, or where. Since last January, you have operated under mild restrictions necessary to saving of critical materials—gasoline, rubber, zinc and paper."

Young Dennis Berry leaves for the army tomorrow.

Dennis Berry is, or was, the star hurler for Prospect park in the Park association softball league.

And how did young Dennis Berry close his career as a park league softball chucker? In the proverbial blaze of glory, my friends. But ablaze!

Pitching for Prospect against Johns park Monday evening, Berry struck out 14 batters.

With the bases jammed with Johns runners in the fifth inning, he struck out the side, giving nary a run.

In the ninth inning with Johns having the tying and winning runs on the paths, he fanned Flockenzier to end the ball game.

And he won his own game with a home run in the fifth

What are the prospects for Prospect with Berry going to the army? Hold on to your seats, this'll bowl you over.

The Prospects now are not so merry,
Uncle Sam is picking Berry.
The Prospect hopes were never sicker,
Since Unc became a Berry picker.

Sleepy-eyed Frank Jocha, home from the Provident Loan trip to Georgia, was wondering between yawns Monday evening just why he isn't a shining success as a first base coach.

"The gals didn't let me get much sleep," Frank admitted, "and in this condition I probably shouldn't try to figure it out. But look, this is what happened:

"In that game Saturday Ruth Whiteman was on third and Arlene Peters on first, and the Georgia pitcher cuts loose with a wild heave.

"Of course Whitie romps home with a run, but there's Pete on first jumping up and down and clapping her hands, and even starting to run in toward the plate.

"'Hey,' I yell at her, 'What's the matter? Why don't you run to second?'

"'I guess I just got excited,' says Pete, who has played enough ball to know better."

With things like that to make him weep,
No wonder Frankie couldn't sleep.

South and East Grid Teams Hit

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The south and east are being struck hardest in a war-enforced blackout of intercollegiate football due to a lack of players, coaches and transportation facilities, a survey showed today.

With both major gridiron powers and smaller schools daily joining the growing list of colleges that have been forced to abandon the game for the duration, the majority of "name" casualties to date have been in the south. Five football factories below the Mason-Dixon line have closed and six others are threatened.

The mid-west and west have had no big-time shutdowns, but the outlook is dark at Stanford, and Iowa.

In the mid-west the situation looks like this:

Dropped: St. Louis U., East Central State, Southeastern State, Southwestern Tech, Oklahoma Baptist, Phillips, Northeastern State, North Dakota State, Toledo, John Carroll, Kent State, Ashland, Marietta, and Eureka, and West Virginia Wesleyan.

Probably drop: Iowa, Central State and 13 smaller Iowa schools.

Senator Advocates Sport Continuance

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Sen. James M. Mead, D., N. Y., speaking before the Touchdown club yesterday, advocated the continuance of sports as an integral part of the war effort.

"Sports have become part of the American way of life, and unless in some particular case, they affect the war effort adversely, they should continue," he said.

"In addition to the morale features of the spectator sports, sports events of all kinds have stimulated the sales of war bonds and have raised funds for the army and navy relief societies and Red Cross activities."

Red Sox Beginning To Sock

Blast Out Seven Homers In Last Three Games.

By JUDSON BAILEY

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE Boston Red Sox are beginning to sock once more and at any time now they are likely to muscle in on the honeymoon the New York Yankees and Washington Senators have been enjoying at the top of the American league.

It took Boston a long time to get rolling. At the end of the first month of the season they were in the cellar.

But in the last three games Boston has blasted out seven homers against the best pitching the Philadelphia Athletics could muster and last night moved into a tie for third place with the Cleveland Indians, five games out of first place.

The Red Sox opened the campaign with a desperate outfield problem, but they seem to have solved this by a succession of deals both in the minors and majors and have well earned the improvement they have made in the standings in the second month of the season.

In addition Cecil (Tex) Hughson, the lean pitching star of the Sox, has proved himself unquestionably the outstanding hurler in the league last night as he beat the Athletics 7-1 with five-hit pitching for his seventh victory and fourth straight.

Washington narrowed the gap between first and second place to two games by nosing out the Yankees 3-2 with Mickey Vernon hitting a home run and a triple to star for the Senators.

The Chicago White Sox whipped the St. Louis Browns 5-3 in a night game to advance into a virtual tie for sixth place with the Athletics.

In the National league the Brooklyn Dodgers captured their third straight from the New York Giants 7-4 and cut the lead of the idle St. Louis Cardinals to two games.

Big Paul Derringer shut out the Pittsburgh Pirates 1-0 for the Cubs in a morning game at Chicago.

The Pirates, still short of infielders, had to use outfielder Johnny Wyrostek at third base after Bob Elliott was injured by a smashing grounder in the second inning. As a result Wyrostek made a two-base error in the seventh inning, a wild throw into the dugout that put Harry Lowrey on second, and Len Merullo scored him with a single.

Boston beat the Phillies 7-6.

Brewers Cop Nine In Row

Move Within Game and Half of Loop Leaders.

(By Associated Press)

The rampaging Milwaukee Brewers stood within a game and a half of the American Association lead today as their sizzling winning streak continued unbroken.

They won their ninth straight game last night defeating St. Paul 4 to 3. League leading Indianapolis, meantime, lost ground in suffering a 3 to 1 setback at the hands of Columbus.

The league leaders never seriously threatened Ted Wilks, who gave up but six hits, and Columbus finally broke a 1-1 deadlock with two counters in the eighth.

* * *

Minneapolis and Kansas City broke even in a double header. Jimmy Pofahl's homer with the bases loaded in the fifth inning helped Minneapolis win the opener, 6 to 1. The second, a tight hurling duel between Herb Bain and Floyd Bevens, went 10 innings before Kansas City broke the scoreless tie to win, 1-0.

The Toledo game at Louisville was postponed.

Galento Listed As Entertainment

PATERSON, N. J.—(U.P.)—Abe J. Greene, president of the National Boxing association, clarified the NBA status of Tony Galento today by announcing that any barnstorming carried on by him would be strictly entertainment and not considered boxing competition.

Greene said Willie Gilzenberg, Galento's manager, had assured him that bookings would be made only on the understanding that the Orange, N. J., barkeep was appearing for exhibitions alone.

"When Galento is ready for genuine fistic action," Gilzenberg told Greene, "we will notify the NBA. Until that time, there need be no misinterpretation of his appearances."

Finds Marine Ring Prospect

Hopes Youth Becomes Second Gene Tunney.

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—(AP)—Pfc. Marty Schwartz figures he may have uncovered a second Gene Tunney—a marine who may prove to be the best heavyweight boxing prospect to come out of the military services in this war.

The possible contender for Joe Louis' crown is Pvt. Jack Vanderlinde, 17 years old, six-feet-one-inch tall, and weighing 190 pounds without an ounce of visible fat.

Trainer of Marine Sergeant Barney Ross in the years the latter held the junior welterweight, lightweight and welterweight championships of the world, Private Schwartz has served here as boxing instructor in the Marine Corps base's recruit depot for almost a year and during that time has refereed approximately 300 bouts staged by young marines from every section of the nation.

Vanderlinde, now serving as a physical instructor in the recruit depot, hails from Sioux City, South Dakota.

Schwartz, who calls Chicago home, thought for a time, that in Private Dudley Richardson, USMC, 24, of San Jose, California, also a six-footer and weighing 192, he had uncovered a likely looking heavyweight prospect. But when he matched the hard hitting Vanderlinde and Richardson he changed his mind. The strapping South Dakotan won the unanimous decision of the judges in a slambang three-round fight.

"I've seen hundreds of young fighters come and go, but I'm willing to go on record that this Vanderlinde is the best looking heavyweight prospect I have seen in many a year," said Schwartz.

So enthused is Schwartz over Vanderlinde that he spends a deal of time daily with the youth in teaching him the finer points of boxing.

"I used to be considered a good fighter in shipyard circles and in knocking about the country with my dad, a construction engineer, but this Vanderlinde is the best looking young heavyweight I ever swapped punches with and I fought in some dozen states," said Richardson.

Vanderlinde won his first bout in a Golden Gloves show at Sioux City when only 13 years of age. A big boy even in his early teens, Vanderlinde, then 14, heard about a carnival fighter offering a purse for anyone able to stay in the ring with him for three rounds.

Undaunted by the fact that the carnival was playing 30 miles from his home, Vanderlinde hitchhiked his way there, challenged the carnival fighter and knocked him cold in the second round.

"Yes, I like to fight and when this war is over I hope Marty Schwartz will take me under his wing and let me see just what I can do in the ring," said Vanderlinde modestly. "I have been blessed with a strong body and I intend to keep it so."

And Marty Schwartz said: "You bet I want this Vanderlinde after the war is over. After all, the Marines turned a heavyweight champion, Gene Tunney, out after World War I and maybe we have another in Vanderlinde. He, in my opinion, seems to have what it takes to make a real champion."

Card '42 Series Stars Return for Honors

Diamond rings, given as a reward for their winning the 1942 world series, go to members of the St. Louis Cardinals during a ceremony in St. Louis. Three of the 1942 Cardinal club, now in the service, returned to take part in the ceremony. They are, left to right, Enos Slaughter, Mrs. Etta Moore, representing Terry Moore, her son, who now is in Panama; Frank Crespi and Johnny Beazley. Player at right in uniform is Pitcher Mort Cooper.

HOW COULD THEY

LONDON—(INS)—A Dutch peasant, owner of two cows, was ordered to deliver all milk to the officers' mess at the nearby German garrison. Instead, he quickly sold both of his cherished animals to a butcher. He was arrested and questioned by the German commandant himself.

"Well," explained the old peasant, "I was acting in your interest, sir. Since I explained to my cows that they had been honored by your order, they refused to be milked. So I had them executed for sabotage and anti-Nazi conspiracy."

NEW YORK—(AP)—Newest candidate for the Dodgers' shortstopping job is 17-year-old Gene Mauck of Los Angeles, who has been working out with the Bums for a couple of days. Carl Hubbell celebrated his 40th birthday by shagging flies during pregame practice, as usual.

Reds Climb As They Rest

Peace Comes To Detroit And Indians Play Again.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— The Cincinnati Reds resume their series with the St. Louis Cardinals this afternoon following a highly profitable day of rest in which the fifth-place Reds gained a half game each on the third-place Pittsburgh Pirates and the fourth-place Philadelphia Phillies, who lost yesterday's games.

Ray Starr, who hurled a 1 to 0 victory over the Pirates in a 14-inning game last week, has been nominated for mound duty by Manager Bill McKechnie.

Morton Cooper will go after his tenth triumph of the year.

The Reds, admittedly "the team I'll have to beat"—says Southworth—will be at a decided disadvantage throughout the Cardinal series because of the loss of Lonnie Frey's services. Frey, suffering a pulled muscle in his left leg, was replaced at second base by Woody Williams.

The world champs conclude the three game series with the Reds Thursday morning in a 11 a. m. Ladies' Day contest. Following that the Cardinals embark on a three-week swing around the loop.

RESUME PLAY

DETROIT—(AP)—Cleveland's Indians and Detroit's Tigers clash in a double header today after yesterday's series opener was postponed in accord with Governor Harry Kelly's ban on public assemblies.

Governor Kelly said he would permit the twin bill, explaining that conditions were "much improved." Baseball sources reported 350 Michigan state troops would be guests at the games.

Jack Salveson and Mike Naymick are the Cleveland hurling choices against Hal Newhouser and Hal White.

Lt. Donald M. Alexander, who won 16 letters as an Abingdon (Va.) high school athlete and was a member of varsity basketball and baseball squads at Virginia Polytechnic institute, now is commanding officer of the 36th Training group at Jefferson Barracks, Mo.

Ohio Navy Colleges Plan Sport Schedules

Athletic Directors Discuss Competition at Mansfield Meet.

OHIO COLLEGES with U. S. Navy programs agreed last night in a meeting of athletic directors and navy physical instructors at Mansfield-Leland hotel on the desirability of athletic competition among the naval schools.

However, no definite action was taken, Coach George Gauthier of Ohio Wesleyan, meeting chairman, explained because any program set up by the athletic group of the naval schools would have to be approved by the commanding officers at the various colleges.

The group decided to meet again in Mansfield in the near future, setting July 11 at 6 p. m. as a tentative date, at which time they hope to have the commanding officers present and draw up a definite program to provide competition for naval trainees stationed in Ohio.

Schools represented at last night's meeting were Ohio Wesleyan, Oberlin, Case, Baldwin-Wallace, Denison, Miami, Bowling Green and Wooster. John Carroll, another naval school, had been invited to the meeting, but recently announced suspension of inter-collegiate athletics for the duration.

The colleges have either Navy V-12 or Navy aviation courses with a constant turnover in trainees which will prevent any long distance planning in building up of athletic teams, but at least will provide material for sport in season.

Gauthier, who called last night's meeting, said there appears a prospect that a number of colleges with army programs, and soldiers ineligible for athletics, will suspend football this fall, and that it will be necessary to readjust gridiron schedules.

The agreement among the navy schools on desirability of competition should permit those schools to fill out schedules broken up by possible cancellations, Gauthier pointed out.

There was no question of eligibility of players considered at last night's meeting. The Ohio Conference recently declared all bona fide students eligible for inter-collegiate competition for the duration, but the schools represented at the Mansfield meeting are not all Ohio Conference schools. Ohio Wesleyan and Miami were members of the now defunct Buckeye Conference.

* * *

While a possibility that the navy schools may some day form their own athletic league is seen in their war time agreement, the idea was not brought up at the meeting.

Bob Johnson Given Credit

Called Spark Plug of Washington Revival.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Manager Ossie Bluege rates outfielder Bob Johnson the key performer in the Senator's challenge for the American league pennant.

Discussing his Washington squad after yesterday's victory over the Yanks, Ossie said, "everyone on the club is playing good ball, but the standout is Bob Johnson."

Johnson, the 34-year-old Cherokee Indian slugger whose triple won yesterday's game after Mickey Vernon had set the stage, came to the Senators on March 31 in a deal with the Athletics. Bob had played with Connie Mack's Philadelphia outfit for 10 years.

And he probably still would be with the A's were it not for a dispute over an expected bonus as a result of attendance at the A's home games last season. Johnson refused to sign his contract for 1943 because he didn't receive the bonus. Accordingly, he was traded to Washington for infielders Roberto Estalella and Jimmy Pofahl. Pofahl refused to report to the A's having taken a defense job, and Washington gave Mack some cash instead.

Everyone wondered at the time how Johnson would react to his first change of uniform since coming to the majors in 1933. Apparently his reaction has been excellent. He has driven in 35 runs so far, to rank fourth in the majors in that department. Last season he drove in 80 with the Athletics, his smallest number during the decade with the Mackmen. He accounted for 121 in 1936.

Manager Bluege is delighted with the Cherokee's achievements as well as the play of his other performers. Ossie said, "Our boys have been hustling and we've been getting good breaks. I believe we've made more errors than any club in the league, but most of those errors were made when they didn't hurt us. We've been getting only fair hitting but our hits were timely—resulting in runs. And our pitching has been much better than expected. Carrasquel, Candidi, Leonard and Wynn have come through fine. Pyle was going good until a couple weeks ago. Also Mertz and Haefner have helped. You might even say that pitching has been our strong point."

Dodds Scheduled To Race Haegg

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—Gunder Haegg, the Swedish thunderbolt, will gallop against Gil Dodds, national AAU 1500-meter champion, in the Los Angeles coliseum July 10.

The Haegg-Dodds duel—in which the foreign sensation will attempt to crack his own two-mile record—was confirmed today by Arnold Eddy, Southern Pacific AAU secretary, in a letter from Dan Ferris, national secretary.

* * *

Two other attempts to shatter existing world records will be made in conjunction with the feature two-mile event, Eddy said.

Whirlaway Runs 3rd In Warmup

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— Whirlaway, the turf's most affluent horse, added another $250 to his winning today.

Whirly took it easy in his 1943 debut at Arlington Park yesterday and finished third in the sixth and feature race behind Mar-Kell and King's Abbey.

Whirlaway ran the mile course easily but let Mar-Kell, his stablemate from the Calumet Farms, run away with the $1,650 prize money. Whirlaway's winnings yesterday boosted his total to $561,161.

Lt. James B. Hines, former gridiron and mat star of North Carolina State, and football and wrestling coach at the University of North Carolina now is at Hendricks Field as junior director of physical training. Also at Hendricks Field is Lt. E. L. Elinor E. Jones, women's Southwestern golf champion and New Mexico state title holder, and member of the board of directors of the Women's Trans-Mississippi Golf association, has joined the WAAC and is in basic training at Fort Des Moines, Ia.

Tourney Moves Along In Apple Pie Order.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The forty-second annual tri-state tennis tournament moved into the third round today with no recorded upsets as the favorites advanced in apple pie order.

Seymour Greenberg, Chicago stylist who won the national clay courts title Sunday, brushed past his first two opponents yesterday defeating Frank Strout, of Portland, Ore., 6-2, 6-0, and Gordon Wright of Cincinnati, 6-1, 6-0.

Billy Talbert, top-seeded Cincinnatian, beat Wally Hoeh, of Cincinnati, 6-2, 6-0.

National women's singles champion, Pauline Betz of Los Angeles, easily downed Betty Hartevelt of Cincinnati in straight love sets, while Catherine Wolf of South Bend, Ind., outplayed two Cincinnati entries, Ann Vail, 6-2, 6-1, and Mrs. John Luhrman, 6-1, 6-2.

Fireworks of the day occurred in the meeting between youthful Joanne Dunn of Des Moines, Ia., and Elizabeth Prince of Cincinnati. Miss Dunn triumphed after being extended 6-4 and 9-7.

Newcomers Play In Tennis Joust

NEW YORK —(AP)— The title and the site will be the same as those of the past but otherwise there will be little resemblance between the 1943 national tennis championships and those of preceding years.

The USLTA has determined to decide titleholders in five divisions but will compress the entire competitions into six days beginning Sept. 1 and ending on Labor day, Sept. 6.

The men's singles and doubles, women's singles and doubles and mixed doubles championships will be run off on the West Side Tennis club courts at Forest Hills on those days with the fields in the singles limited to 32 players and the doubles teams held at 16.

Insect Control In the Victory Potato Patch.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Released by Central Press Association)

o have a good crop of potatoes erground it is necessary to do ything possible to have a y top growth above ground. heavier the leaf growth and more healthy the foliage more starch is formed and greater the yield. The potato it rootlets take up nourishit from the soil and this is fed ugh the starch to the leaves re with the assistance of the and air it forms food for the rs.

is highly important to check potato plant foliage frequentfor detection of the potato is, small glistening green or ish colored insects. The potato aphis is about one-eighth of an inch long and it is rarely seen to move. For control of this potato pest use a nicotine dust or spray. If the potato aphis is not kept under control they will increase until countless numbers of them are sucking the life juices from the plants.

In some sections of the country potato plants are subject to attack by small green leafhoppers. The work of the leafhoppers causes the leaves to dry and curl up in the summer and this shortens the life of the plant. This condition is known as "hopper burn." The use of Bordeaux mixture is recommended for the control of this pest and fortunately this treatment also checks other diseases.

CHEERFUL LETTERS FROM HOME BEST 'MEDICINE' FOR SOLDIERS

She has lent an average of $100 a month to men whose service records had not caught up with them and were therefore unable to draw pay. Most of the loans are $3 to $10 to cover cigarets and toilet articles

Miss Ross 'adopted" a signal corps company and spends her spare time helping decorate its day-room and providing small luxuries. In return, the unit built her a sandalwood telephone box.

Lady Rodyguard.

No, the manpower shortage hasn't become that serious. It's only the name of a movie, and, according to advance reports, a movie which promises to keep any audience in a constant laugh throughout. "Lady Bodyguard," starring Eddie Albert and Anne Shirley, now at the Ritz, deals with Miss Shirley's job of keeping Albert, a test-pilot, on the ground. Miss Shirley is an insurance company executive and, quite naturally, is at odds with the beneficiaries who want to get rid of Albert so they can collect. Other Ritz picture is "Thunder in the City," starring Edward G. Robinson."

Idaho Filmed.

The state of Idaho, neglected by sentimentalists until the hit song "Idaho" was composed, comes into its own in Republic's new western drama, based on the song, which opens tomorrow at the Park. Roy Rogers, the "King of the Cowboys," is seen in the starring role, supported by Smiley Burnette. Also in the cast are Harry Shannon, Dick Purcell, Arthur Hohl, Hal Taliaferro, Jack Ingram, Tom London and Rex Lease. Joseph Kane directed. "Army Surgeon," starring James Ellison, Jane Wyatt and Kent Taylor, is the other Park attraction.

She Admits It.

Judy Garland, currently starring in "Presenting Lily Mars," now at the Ohio, became of age recently. She was 21 June 10. And on that day she summed up her life, so far, as just a series of boners. One happened recently when she was visiting an army camp with her mother. She was introduced to a colonel, and after a long conversation, she left saying "It's been a pleasure meeting you, corporal!" Another one happened when she and Mickey Rooney were asked to place their hand and footprints in the forecourt of a theater in Hollywood. Judy wanted to appear glamorous, so she had some false fingernails put on by a manicurist. When she placed her hand in the cement, the fingernails came off.

New Generator Raises Output Of Parker Dam

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—With the recent addition of a fourth generator, the Parker dam power plant development in Arizona and California reached a 115,000 kilowatt capacity, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes has announced.

Located on the Colorado river, the Parker power plant was completed 10 years ahead of schedule because of "current war demands." The dam is a part of the "home-front battery" consisting of 18 projects in 11 Western states. At the present time, the plants on these projects are producing more than 1,834,000 kilowatts, or twice the pre-Pearl Harbor capacity.

The major function of the Parker dam is diversion of waters released from Boulder Dam, 155 miles distant, into the aqueduct providing Los Angeles and 12 other Southern California cities with a supplemental water supply.

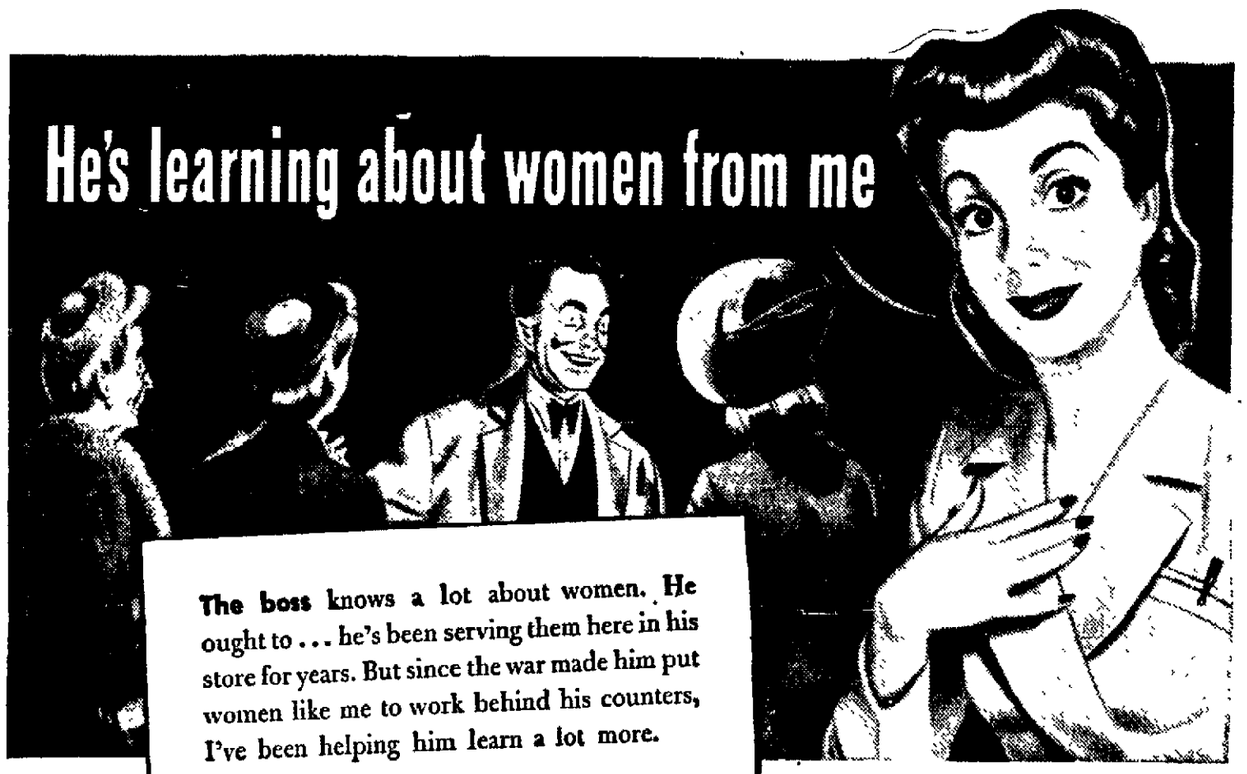
He's learning about women from me



The boss knows a lot about women. He ought to... he's been serving them here in his store for years. But since the war made him put women like me to work behind his counters, I've been helping him learn a lot more.

1. Take, for instance, the sort of questions women are asking about products... and about things like point rationing. "How can I stretch it farther?" "Will it save me money... and ration points?" Being new on the job, I find 'em pretty hard to answer.

2. But what a big help it is when the manufacturer tells our customers all about it... explains complicated things like rationing... in our newspaper. That way our customers... and my boss and I, too... all find out. It makes our jobs a lot easier.

3. One thing I learned right away. Nearly always, the brands women ask for first... especially among things that are rationed... are the ones they've read about in the local newspaper. War keeps women busier... but they read the papers more than ever.

4. "You know," I tell the boss, "we ought to be mighty glad so many manufacturers keep behind us with ads right here in our own newspapers." "I'm realizing that, more and more," he comes back. "That's the kind of advertising that really helps these days."

Thousands of other women who've gone to work as "men behind the counter" are finding out what a help it is when manufacturers support their retailers with advertising in newspapers... the place where women look first these days for the answers to their wartime shopping [illegible]

COAL STRIKE ENDS, OCT. 31 DEADLINE SET

Lewis Orders Men Back To Pits as Long as U. S. Retains Control.

Hallowe'en, when pumkpins frighten children."

Whether this victory claim was shared by a majority of the board was uncertain. Technically Lewis was still in defiance of the board. He refused to sign the contract as directed, calling it "an famous yellow-dog contract," even though it appeared he was accepting the wage terms of that contract.

Whether this means the miners, contrary to traditional policy, agreed to work without a contract is a matter of interpretation.

It was possible the WLB might yet protest to the president against Lewis' condition that the government must retain direction of the mines.

A well-placed source said nationalization of the mines, as such was not contemplated, and the operators would be continued as managers for the government, although stricter supervision would be required.

Reports from the field indicated the miners would start returning to the pits for the late shifts today, but full production may not be restored for a day or two because many local unions wait for official notice from UMW headquarters. That was going out today.

Miners' Wives Say They Won't Cook

BELLAIRE—(AP)—Ohio miners' wives are threatening to quit cooking and washing their husbands' overalls if the men obey a United Mine Workers Union order to resume coal production without a contract with the operators, a UMW official reported today.

"It will be hard to get many of our men to go back to work," Adolph Pacifico, vice president of District 6, declared. "I never saw a group of men so dissatisfied with the way the administration has kicked our contract around."

More than 20,000 Ohio bituminous miners have been idle this week since the War Labor Board rejected their demands for pay for time spent underground in going to and from work.

Pacifico said he could not say how long it would take to get mines back in production, even if all Ohio miners decided to go along with the UMW policy committee's decision to work for the government until Oct. 31.

White House Silent On No-Strike Bill

WASHINGTON — (INS) — As the deadline for presidential action on the Smith-Connally anti-strike bill approached, there was still no indication at the White House today of whether Mr. Roosevelt would approve or veto the bill, or permit it to become law without his signature.

It was felt in some quarters that President Roosevelt would not sign the bill, because, if that had been his decision, he would have acted before Lewis led his mine workers out of the mines last Sunday at midnight.

There was a distinct possibility that Mr. Roosevelt would veto the bill as being too drastic.

PAY RAISE APPROVED

CLEVELAND —(AP)— A new wage schedule providing an average 20 per cent increase for 27 employes of the Camp Brothers Brick comany at Mogadore, was approved today by Ray M. Suter, wage stabilization director for the regional war labor board.

Heat, City's Industrial Pace Put Strain on Water Supply

ine, who is in the city for the state conference on sewage treatment.

Although he said the city's water is too hard for some home uses, it is pure and cold and more palatable than the water most cities get.

He said the Mansfield water and sewage charges, which rarely exceed $8 a year in most homes are among the lowest he's ever heard of.

"Your water cost here not only is far below the average for cities of this size but it's about the lowest I've ever run across," Enslow said.

Despite the low rates, the sewer fund surplus is growing so rapidly that city council has remitted the charges due in the last half of this year.

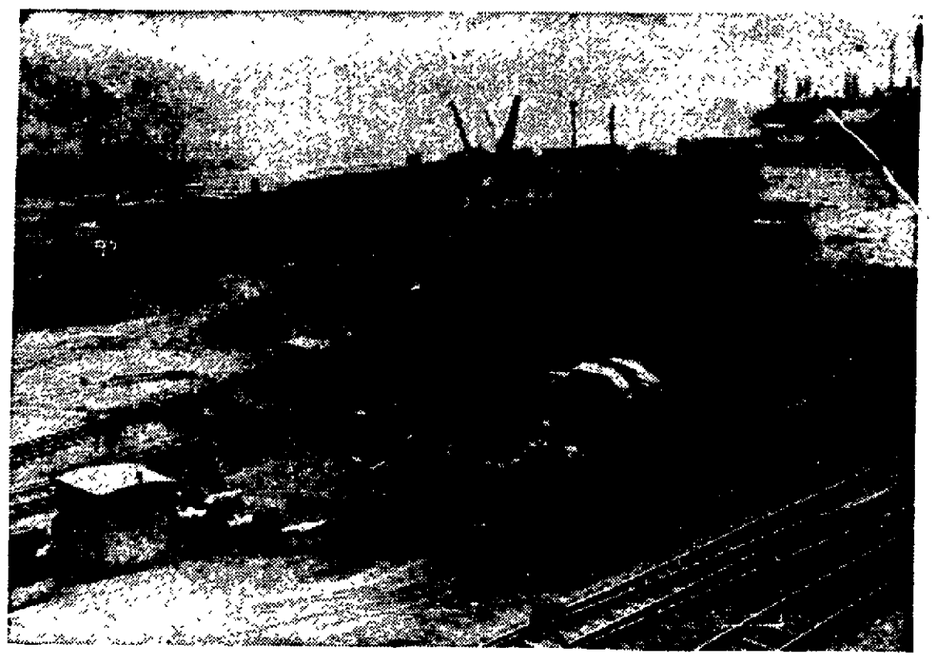
Strike Ends as Steel Mills Scrape Bottom



Sudden decision of the policy committee of the United Mine Workers to end the strike of the coal miners of the nation came just in time to prevent complete exhaustion of coal stocks at many steel mills. This coal yard of a mill at Clairton, Pa., normally is piled 65 feet high with the fuel, but the most recent strike and those preceding it reduced the stocks to the few low piles pictured above. Bulldozers are scraping it into piles so that clamshell buckets can load it into cars.

GETS HIS MONEY

But Ernie Pyle, Columnist, Has To Have General's Help.

ALGIERS —(U.P.)— Ernie Pyle, American columnist with the United States armed forces in Africa, had to get a general to help him today when he wanted to collect some money sent to him from America.

The money was sent through Barclay's bank. The bank declined to turn it over to Pyle because it was addressed to Ernie Pyle, whereas the correspondent's official identification card is signed: Ernest Taylor Pyle.

Pyle went to the adjutant general and got an affidavit saying he was "Ernie Pyle." He got the money.

Pyle's column appears daily in The News-Journal.

MUELHEIM HIT BY HUNDREDS OF BIG BOMBS

Block-Busters Shatter Steel Center as Fires Still Rage at Krefeld.

port, to the toe of the Italian boot.

Aerial reconnaissance photos taken after the U. S. Flying Fortress raid Monday on Naples disclosed that 40 per cent of the Italian royal arsenal there had been destroyed.

An Italian communique said Allied planes also pounded Castelvetrano and Milazzo, in Sicily, and Olbia in northern Sardinia. The Fascist command said 41 were killed and 50 injured at Salerno, while five were killed and 55 injured in the Messina straits area.

Other events at-a-glance:

INVASION JITTERS — Berlin hints Italy must face initial shock of Allied invasion with little aid from Nazi war machine, but promises help "in case of a decisive battle on Italian soil"; German commentator says other Mediterranean coasts, especially the Balkans, must be watched.

RUSSIA—Soviet bombers smash anew at German airdromes behind the lines; Red army's big guns batter Nazi fortifications in Smolensk zone.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC — Australian troops beat off sharp Japanese thrust in New Guinea jungles, kill 100 enemy soldiers; U. S. fliers strafe retreating Japanese 20 times.

CHINA — American fighter planes blast three Japanese-occupied towns on upper Yangtze river front, aid Chinese troops closing in on invaders.

Underlining a statement by Adolf Hitler's own newspaper that the Allied aerial offensive against the continent was "damn serious," the German high command acknowledged today that the populations of Muelheim and Oberhausen suffered "major casualties" during the night.

DNB asserted the Allies had met their "greatest defeat" so far over western Europe by losing 135 planes from early Tuesday until early today. Official Allied reports said 107 British and American aircraft were lost in the 24-hour period, covering not only three mighty assaults on the Ruhr but also widespread operations up and down the Nazi "invasion" coast.

By contrast, the Germans lost 185 planes in a single day during the 1940 battle of Britain.

Immobilize 200 Nazi Trains Daily

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The combination of Allied air raids and railway sabotage inside France has been immobilizing about 200 trains daily, according to information reaching fighting French headquarters here through persons escaping from German-occupied Europe.

Both the airmen who swooped across the English channel and the French guerrillas operating behind enemy lines concentrate on crippling transportation, a headquarters spokesman said today, particularly by puting railway locomotives out of commission. Many locomotives beyond range of the marauding flyers succumb to the boiler-wrecking tactics of the saboteurs or are wrecked in derailments engineered by guerrillas.

One of the most successful derailment jobs recently was carried out by guerrillas on the line between Nevers and Chagny, in central France. Fifty-two Germans were killed and 150 injured in this wreck and traffic was blocked for several days.

The guerrillas also have been active in the wrecking of power plants, water works and factories.

53 Nazis Slain By Yugoslav Guerrillas

BERN, Switzerland —(AP)— Reports from Yugoslav partisan headquarters asserted today that partisan guerrillas, operating southeast of Belgrade in the vicinity of Pozarevac, had killed 53 pro-Nazi guards and the mayors of two cities who were cooperating with the Axis.

Red Bombers Stab At Nazi Airdromes

LONDON—(AP)— Russian bombers hammered again at Nazi airdromes behind the lines last night but the only ground activity reported today by the midday Russian communique consisted of scouting and artillery bombardments.

About 20 German planes were destroyed on the ground when Red army airmen struck behind the enemy's defenses on the Leningrad front and three enemy planes were downed in air combat near Rostov, said the bulletin.

Yesterday, the Russians said their airmen bombed supply depots along the front and shot 17 enemy planes from formations attempting to attack the Leningrad sector. The Russian bulletin admitted the loss of nine Russian fighters during the aerial combats.

The Germans said in a Berlin broadcast that they downed 29 Soviet planes yesterday as their air force raided objectives near Volkhov and in the southern sector.

See Recognition For French Committee

ALGIERS — (AP) — Belief the United Nations will recognize the French committee of National Liberation shortly as the provisional government of France was expressed today as a compromise settlement restored harmony to the factions of Generals Charles De Gaulle and Henri Giraud.

Yesterday's agreement on the military control both leaders had sought in effect continues the status quo — Giraud retaining command of French troops in north and west Africa while De Gaulle will command the forces in other empire territories.

Formal recognition has been withheld by the Allies pending committee unity, and the compromise was reached after the United States and Britain were reported to have insisted on Giraud's continuation as African commander while this area remains an Allied base.

Warns Rome Not Exempt From Bombs

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—An RAF commentator made clear today that Rome could be removed definitely and permanently from under the threat of Allied bombing alone if it were made an open city and the United Nations were convinced it was not participating in the Axis war effort.

The commentator, who would not permit the use of his name, emphasized that this did not mean a decision had been reached to bomb the Italian capital.

He reminded a press conference, however, of Prime Minister Churchill's past declaration that Rome could not consider itself exempt from bombing if such an attack were deemed necessary to the Allied war effort.

DETROIT RIOT DEATH TOLL 29

Governor Lifts Restrictions on Ball Game and Races as Troops Stand Guard.

and automobiles were smashed and burned in the nation's worst race riot since the East St. Louis battle of 1917. Troops seized rifles and broke up small scuffles during the night.

Kelly said emergency restrictions will be lifted sufficiently to permit the playing of today's baseball double-header between Cleveland and Detroit at Briggs Stadium and the running of the race program scheduled at the Detroit fairgrounds. Both had been called off yesterday.

Other restrictions, including the ban on the sale of liquor and the 10 p. m. curfew, will remain in force until further notice. Theaters were permitted to operate yesterday, but were ordered closed by 9:15 p. m. to permit patrons to be home by 10 p. m.

While mobs of whites and negroes disappeared from the streets as soldiers in armored cars and jeeps carrying machine guns toured the negro distirct, it was feared that the outbreak would continue to affect production in many of the city's war plants.

Negro absenteeism ran as high as 50 to 70 per cent in plants of the Ford Motor company, Chrysler corporation and General Motors corporation, yesterday and spokesmen said the situation was "bound to affect war output."

Additional arrests were reported early today, boosting the total over the 1,250 mark previously reported by police. It was expected further court action would be taken today against those involved in the riots, which brought injuries to more than 700 persons. Thirty-four negroes were given 90-day jail sentences yesterday and others were fined.

As negroes began to repair the damage to their homes and stores, which police estimated would run into hundreds of thousands of dollars, white and negro leaders attributed the riots to fifth-column activities and the Klu Klux Klan.

Walter White, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the Klan and "Nazi money" circulating here had "something to do with inciting the riots," and expressed apprehension over what may happen when the soldiers leave. Klan officials were not available for comment.

Mayor Edward J. Jeffries, Jr., said he hoped White was "mistaken" in his belief the situation remained explosive.

White and negro leaders sought to ferret out ringleaders of the riot and R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) which has a large negro membership employed in war plants, urged appointment of a special grand jury "to investigate the causes of the riots and return justifiable indictments."

CASTORIA BACK

Babies Can Cry For It, Company Ends Trouble.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Manufacture of Fletcher's Castoria, halted seven weeks ago when it was discovered shipments had caused nausea in some instances was resumed today, according to Harold B. Thomas, vice president of Stirling Drug, Inc.

Thomas said the use of a lower sugar content—a wartime conservation measure—and a change in chemical characteristics of the water used had interfered with the aging process of the product, causing slight nausea. Methods to prevent a recurrence have been devised, he said.

BOMBER LANDS SAFELY

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Five occupants of a B17 army plane were unharmed today and the plane only slightly damaged after a jammed landing gear forced a "belly landing" at nearby Lockbourne air base; public relations officers announced.

The Axis overran 1,063,377 square miles of territory in Europe in the first three years of the war.

Chinese Battle Japs on Salween River Front

Gallant Chinese allies, fighting without sufficient equipment and supplies, nevertheless still are battling the Japs to a standstill. These first photos from the Salween river front in Yunnan province show Chinese troops as they fought against 50,000 attacking Jap soldiers near the Burma border. Using foliage as camouflage, Chinese soldiers crouch in their trenches to repel an attack, top, as a shell explodes, right. Price of victory is reflected in the file of wounded Chinese, lower photo, shown moving toward the rear, some in litters, others hobbling along on crude crutches.

SEES CONGRESS LIKE REICHSTAG

Senator George Says OPA Plan Reduces Solons Powers.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Chairman Walter F. George, (D., Ga.), of the senate finance committee today warned congress that unless it kills OPA's roll-back subsidy program it will be reduced to the status of a reichstag.

"The program to roll back butter, meat and coffee prices was set up by the office of price administration against the known wishes of congress," George said in an interview. "Any post-recognition for authorization would be tantamount to stripping congress of control of the purse strings, and leave it with powers comparable to the German reichstag."

"Subsidies are doubly inflationary," he said, "it feeds into the channels of trade greater purchasing powers. It increases the national debt by whatever amount is paid out under such a program."

Worse Than Dynamite, Says Eye-Witness to Ashland Blast

their first thoughts were of an air raid alert. Still others thought the noise to be the rumble of thunder while some rightly guessed it to be an explosion.

Led by the bright glow of the burning express car Ashlanders went to investigate, garbed in all manner of clothing. Women in housecoats and men with coats thrown over their pajamas gathered at the scene ten minutes after the rocking blast.

One woman clad in pajamas and housecoat hurrying to the scene of the accident related, "I had just gone to bed and was nearly asleep when I heard the explosion. It shook the whole house like an earthquake. I couldn't imagine what had happened."

Others told stories of being shaken awake and jumping to their feet out of a sound sleep. Storekeepers whose shops were located within two blocks of the accident found their plate glass windows in splinters, and set to work cleaning up the debris.

Within a matter of minutes the congested traffic conditions had been taken over by police. Crowds were held back from the blazing car by auxiliary police and air raid wardens.

LAUNDRIES SEE COLLAPSE

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Warning the nation's laundry industry faced an impendnig collapse within six months, the national laundry and linen supply associations headed for the war manpower commission today with a request they be classified as "sanitary services" or at least as essential industries.

from the siding and smashed against the station.

Scores of persons in homes for blocks around the station were aroused from their sleep by shattering windows and the thunderous noise of the blast.

Windows rattled and homes were shaken in more distant parts of the city.

Lights started popping on in practically all residences and a rush of telephone calls paralyzed the phone systems at police headquarters, the fire station and the sheriff's office.

Flames lighting the sky pointed the way to the scene of the accident.

Early arrivals among the thousands of onlookers who gathered there, went past home after home where windows had been shattered. Puzzled occupants were outside in their night clothing surveying damage.

Many spectators arrived at the scene before the fireworks explosions had ceased.

Several persons close to the scene of the explosion said there was a bright flash and a thunderous roar followed by a series of blasts as various pieces of fireworks exploded in the car.

The fireworks had been trucked to the station from the fireworks plant at Polk, seven miles northwest of here.

White-helmeted civilian defense workers augumented Ashland police officers and sheriff's deputies in maintaining order and directing traffic.

Richland county Sheriff Frank E. Robinson, two deputies and a detail of officers from the Mansfield substation of the state highway patrol also were on the scene.

The dead and injured were loaded into ambulances and rushed to the hospital.

Firemen played several streams of hose on the blazing car and one section of the station which was on fire inside. Some of the furniture was blown out of the waiting room.

Firemen were still pouring water on the burning car today.

It was estimated today that nearly 500 window panes were broken in the area surrounding the explosion scene.

A number of these were large windows in stores in the immediate neighborhood. Police officers stood guard at the damaged stores throughout the night.

Traffic on the railroad line was delayed for more than three hours.

RAPS WALKER

Senator Charges He Uses Mail For Political Purposes.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Sen. William Langer, R., N. D., has demanded the resignation of Postmaster General Frank C. Walker as chairman of the National Democratic party because of the alleged use of second class mailing privileges for political purposes.

"Why should a wealthy magazine owner be obligated to pay a former chairman of the Democratic party an attorney's fee to get Mr. Walker to change his mind and say that a magazine which he had barred as obscene was in fact not obscene at all," he asked in the senate yesterday.

"Ugly, very ugly rumors persist in Washington that where Mr. Walker has barred as obscene 70 magazines, barred them after a farcial hearing before three of his subordinates, that if the right lawyer was hired, they could be reinstated."

CHAPTER VI

T. Jefferson Caldwell, the ne-ro pantryman, came out of the ubway at 135th street and stood or a moment blinking his eyes t the dazzling Lenox avenue oon-dazzling, that is, in all save ie tint of the local population. eading north toward 138th reet, Jefferson looked down at is feet, which were encased in rand-new shoes

"Feet!" he addressed them, im-ressively, "Feet! Right now, you ught have been struttin' the olden Street up yonder, instead this-hyar Harlem cee-ment!" e paused to consider his reflec-on in a shop window He raightened his tie and smoothed s lapels. "Now, ain't that some-in'?" he chuckled, admiringly From now on, whenever ah needs new suit, all ah got to do is t mahself torpetered, and let iem Red Cross ladies clothe me the robes o' sweet charity!"

Turning into 138th street, Jef-rson looked up eagerly at one the tenements There, sure ough, draped from the fire es-ipe outside a top floor window, as the American flag . . .

"Home, sweet home!" he mur-ured, rolling his eyes in adora-on. Then, bounding up the steps, Ah, jes' got time for a hug, a ss and two po k chop, and then h'll git back down to Seven-enth street!"

Holger Larson, the ship's car-nter, unlocked the door of his at in Brooklyn, and stepped into e dark little hallway "Hey! edda!" he called "You in, Hed-?"

His wife stuck her blond head t of the kitchen. "Hello Holger" e said. "Why are you here, Hol-r? Have you been getting sunk ain, or somet'ling?"

"Yes."

"You speak like you are very re about it, Holger!"

"I am very sore about it To sunk t'ree times is no yoke edda!"

"Well, Holger, you know what do about it!"

"You bet I know!"

She reached down a bottle of ua vite and poured him a glass it

"Ah, poor fellow!" Impulsively e stooped and kissed his cheek He patted her on the back lave a drink yourself, my girl!" Obediently, she filled another ass. He raised his own, clinked against hers, and smiled at her rough his scraggly, graying stache "May thine fair plue es see the last tam Yerman il in his own yuices in hell!" toasted "Skol!"

"Skol!" she echoed Again they nked the little glasses and ank

"Can I make you some lunch, lger?"

"No. I brought a herring along th me. I got to eat kvick and t right back over to Seven-nt' street"

"To the hiring hall?"

"Yes"

"Good! Sit down and unwrap ir herring, Holger, I will bring some knackerbrod But . . . y don't you take off your hat, lger?" And she put her arms ound him

In the smoke-filled hiring hall the National Maritime Union, Manhattan's Seventeenth eet, men were variously engaged in scanning the lists of jobs on the blackboard, standing in line at the window of the hiring cage, playing cards or swapping news and gossip

"Hey, d'ja read this notice here?" The speaker tapped his finger on a typewritten sheet thumbtacked to the bulletin board. "It says 'all seamen are insured for five thousand dollars, payable to their benefic . . . er, beneficiaries'—Yair, and it says if you git hurt and laid up, you draw down the dough yourself, two per cent a month"

"Well, whaddya know! I guess it takes a war to make 'em realize we're human beings"

On one of the benches, a man rattled his newspaper. " . . . Says here, 'The navy announces the sinking of a medium cargo vessel in the Caribbean Three survivors have been landed at Port au Prince, Haiti' . . ."

"Only three? Jeeze! Them Germans sure leaned up hard against that one!"

"Well, there was only four of us picked up off the Tallahasee" " . . . And one o' them not worth counting!"

"Aw, pooh-pooh to you! Say—looka them guys just comin' in!—Ain't they some of the fellers that was on that tanker layin' alongside us at Corpus Christi?"

"Yair, sure! Hey, you fellers—we thought you was on your way to England!"

"We was, but we had a blow-out!"

"—Sunk?"

"—And how! Then they rammed the lifeboat, the dirty stinkers! They . . ."

" . . . Sixteen A B's! Twelve ordinaries!" sang out a voice from the hiring cage "Two electricians' Seven firemen' Three oilers' . . . Have your cards ready, please!"

Throughout the room there was a stir, a fumbling in pockets and the sound of shuffling feet as men took their places in the line The dispatcher nodded at the applicant who stood before his window. "Electrician? Okay — let's see your card, please! Er . . ." he frowned at it, "Er—just what is this name here, Buddy?"

"Sh-sch-schi-schick — SCHICKELGRUBER!" stuttered the applicant, a meek little man who wore spectacles, a moth-eaten mustache and a sprinkling of dandruff on his coat collar

"Hunh? Schickelgruber? Schickelgruber? Hell, feller! Why don't you change it?"

"B-B-But . . . I . . d-d-did . . . ch-ch-ch-change it!"

"You did? What was it before?"

"It was H-H-Hi-Hit-HITLER!" said the little fellow, looking fierce. "T-T-Tit . . . f-for . . . t-t-tat, you know!"

"H'm! Oh!" The dispatcher referred to his vacancy sheets and then wrote something on a slip of paper "Okay, Bud—so you get the job!" he said, shoving the slip under the grating. "Be in the North River ferryhouse, Jersey side, at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning There'll be an NMU guy there to put you on the special bus. Next man! What are you, Bud?"

"I'm an A B Name's Mieczyslav Stanislawski"

"Hunh? Don't sneeze it—spell it!"

"M-i-e-c-z . . ."

"Okay! Okay! I'll just write it M Stanislawski Boy, there's another name ought to be changed!"

"Well, I am gonna change it. Yair, fer the screen! Say, what would you think of Victor Voiture, hunh? Or maybe Victor Mathieu?" Or—or—"

"Never mind! Here's your slip! North River Ferry, Jersey side, 8 a m tomorrow, Sunday. Next guy!"

Stanislawski shoved the card and the slip into his pocket. "Okay, you're next! Soon as you git through, let's ease up to Central Park and see what we can grab off, hunh?"

METAL USED IN SUN GLASSES 'OUT' UNTIL AFTER THE WAR

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Metal for sun glasses and their cases is definitely 'out' for the duration banned by a War Production Board dictum.

Aviation sun glasses, for use by pilots, observers, and other aircraft personnel, are exempt from the limitation

This exemption, however, does not apply to aviation sun glasses purchased by army or marine corps exchanges, or by navy ship's service departments, WPB said

Under the order, certain permitted uses of metals for glasses are enumerated. These include:

'Spring clips in slip-over types of sun glasses, half-hinges, hinge pins and rivets, snaps for cases for aviation sun glasses, and core wire in plastic temples, or manufactured from wire in the producer's inventory on April 23 or from wire obtained by him through a special sale"

Other metal parts, still permitted under the new order, include brass for barrel hinges, and copper zinc silver gold and palladium for electroplating

The order is designed chiefly to conserve approximately 166,000 pounds of nickel silver, which would be used in the manufacture of sun glasses if no prohibitions were imposed

More than 35 million pairs of sun glasses were produced in 1942, the board spokesman added

Survey Reveals Absences Are Due To Illness

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The greatest drain on the United States workin manpower is not accident but illness, according to a recent survey by the United States department of Labor, the American College of Surgeons and the National Association of Manufacturers

On the basis of the survey, 92 per cent of the absenteeism in war plants is attributed to illness and only 8 per cent to accidents. Colds and other respiratory diseases are responsable for almost half the reported absenteeism, accounting for 43 of every 100 absentee-days. Stomach disorders are second, accounting for 13 days. Miscellaneous reasons were given for the other days away from the job.

Conductors of the survey said "self-discipline" in following a well-regimented personal program was necessary to overcome this "bottleneck" in industry

HOLD JOBS ON U. S. FREIGHTER

Women Serve as Cooks and Bakers Aboard Sea-Going Vessels.

(By United Press)

BALBOA, Canal Zone — Three women, believed to be the first to hold papers from the National Maritime union certifying them as seagoing cooks and bakers, arrived here recently aboard a medium-sized freighter loaded with cargo from the west coast of the U. S for the Canal Zone.

Two of the women, Mrs Ruth Bogard, 25, of San Francisco, Cal, and Mrs Mary Cotton, 35, also of San Francisco, have their union certificates already, while the certificate for pretty Summalla Lavieia, 25, from San Francisco, too, is being completed She left so suddenly that she did not have time to obtain it before sailing Called from their quarters, the door of which bore the sign "Three Mess Boys," Mrs. Bogard and Mrs. Cotton proudly displayed their certificates of service issued by the U. S. Department of Commerce and told how they had been accepted for service at sea when eight other women were turned down for similar jobs.

They declare they are the first Americans of their sex to be carried on seamen's papers anywhere.

All of them declare that they like their new life and the skipper and his crew "just fine" Although the freighter carries several guns and sails under all wartime rules, none of the three has been afraid

They take part in all the ship's drills, and attend classes given to the gun crew on rescue and life saving work For recreation they play cards with other crew members or read Mrs Bogard punches a bag with the gun crew when the men are not busy teaching Miss Lavieia jiu-jitsu In addition to their other duties, they all keep an eye on Miss Lavieia's wire-haired 5-month-old puppy, "Patsy."

They earn $105 monthly, including the bonus They all want to go to Australia, and are supposed to have a ship bound for their waiting for them when they get back to the States

They have broken all seafaring tradition in getting aboard the freighter at all Other members of the crew believe that the women will break still another and get to where they want to go—Australia

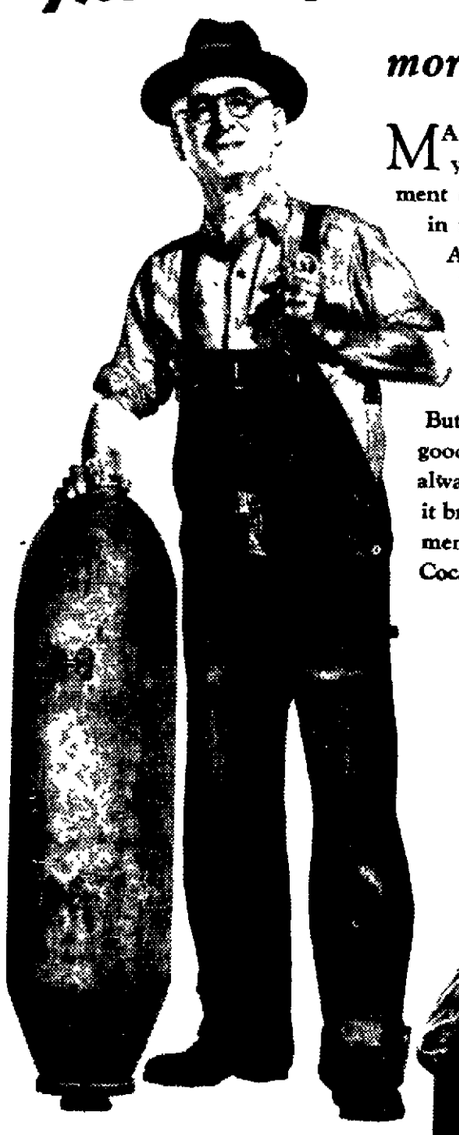
The rest-pause that refreshes

Welcome in peace... more welcome in war work



MANAGERS and personnel directors will tell you that regular rest-pauses plus the refreshment of ice-cold Coca-Cola increase contentment in their plants. Thus production is increased. A pause for Coca-Cola is a little thing in itself, but one of the little things that brighten a busy day.

You might think it strange that workers have such a welcome for a 5¢ soft drink. But Coca-Cola has something all its own in goodness. Made with a finished art, its taste always pleases. More than just quenching thirst, it brings a happy after-sense of complete refreshment. The only thing like Coca-Cola is Coca-Cola, itself.

The best is always the better buy!

Letters from plant managers from coast to coast emphasize that the little moment for an ice-cold Coca-Cola means a lot to workers in war plants. It's a refreshing moment on the sunny side of things . . . a way to turn to refreshment without turning from work.

A breathing spell, a rest-pause and ice-cold Coca-Cola. Contentment comes when you connect with a Coke.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 23, 1943.

We Americans ardently desire to retain our freedoms, our own form of government, our right to live, to worship, to work, to assemble, to trade, to express ourselves, to defend ourselves, to live at peace with God and with our neighbors. This is our strongest defense against totalitarian war aims.—Archbishop Francis J. Spellman.

John L. Lewis Grants Further Time

NOW that the coal miners have again been "ordered back to work" by John L. Lewis after a two days' strike—the third in seven weeks—the whole imbroglio is more remindful of juvenile bickering than mature behavior.

Ignoring all pleas by President Roosevelt, speaking as commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces, more than a half million miners stopped work last Sunday midnight, on instructions from Lewis, who thus demonstrated that his authority over coal miners is greater than that of the government.

Now Lewis has made terms with Secretary Harold L. Ickes, acting as custodian of mines, and has granted the government authority to mine coal until October 31, at which time he will again take up the matter for further consideration.

It will be noted that this concession is made on the basis of understanding that operation of mines and their collateral production units shall be by the United States government "and will automatically terminate if governmental control is vacated prior to the above mentioned date"—which ignores all rights of private ownership and control, just as Lewis desired.

Reduction of the nation's coal supply, due to the several recent work stoppages, had already hampered essential war production and transportation, because of urgent need for the millions of tons of coal thus made unavailable.

Even more important than loss of the coal, however, was the "aid and comfort to the enemy" which has been given as a result of disclosure that one man in America—John L. Lewis—occupies a position of greater authority than the president of the United States and has it within his power to impede the national war effort as much as he chooses without being subjected to the customary penalty for treason.

Considered in association with the racial uprisings in Detroit within the past few days and the recent zoot suit outlawry on the west coast, it appears that the United States has a number of internal problems crying for solution before the functioning of democracy in this country can be presented to the world as a model worthy of global acceptance.

Russia Speaks With Confidence

YESTERDAY'S observance of the second anniversary of Germany's invasion of Russia gave opportunity for a variety of observations on the great changes that have come about since the early stages of Hitler's powerful thrust to the east, confident that he would crush Russian resistance within two months.

That was in June, 1941—less than six months before Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor—and many Americans, without realizing what such an outcome would mean, were rather placid in expressing belief that the Russians would not hold out more than a few weeks against the Nazi blitz.

But the Russians DID "hold out" against temporarily stronger enemy forces, until help could be given by Great Britain and the United States, and the present situation is that Russia's anniversary plea is for a joint assault on Germany from east and west, so that the European phase of the war can be wound up in a hurry instead of being unnecessarily prolonged.

In an anniversary communique the impression is given that Russia regards Germany's military striking power as definitely broken and that an immediate combined attack would end the war quickly, with colossal saving of lives.

Probability of complete understanding already reached between Great Britain, Russia and the United States in the matter of impending military moves, leads to belief that this announcement of Russian views is more designed as a contribution to the "war of nerves" against the Axis than as an effort to change Allied strategy.

Meanwhile aerial assaults on western and southern Europe have been gaining in intensity and destructive force. The war against Japan is also shaping for stronger offensive action. It is only on the home front that conditions have been permitted to develop which tend to encourage the Axis powers and to strengthen their early belief that internal dissension would make the United States of America "a push-over."

Don't Underestimate the Japanese

PEOPLE who know anything about the Japanese, and realize their fanatical hatred of the white race, are not inclined to minimize the task of winning the war against them.

Speaking in Columbus this week, Joseph C. Grew, former ambassador to Tokyo, warned that Japan "is potentially the strongest power on earth—if she is granted time" and predicted that "overweaning ambition" will probably result in Japan making an attack on the United States.

Similar views were expressed in Mansfield yesterday by Louis D. Hochberg, of Akron, who witnessed the fall of Java and who, for several years, was in position to make a close-up study of Japan's preparations for war and the efficiency of the Jap military machine.

Present attitude of the Japanese is seen in a recent statement by Admiral Nomura in which he said: "The tripartite pact powers (Germany, Italy and Japan) do not have to attack any more to win; they need only to hold out in conquered positions."

While any idea that the Axis partners will be permitted to "hold out in conquered positions" is inconceivable, the conclusion cannot be escaped that there is a long, hard job ahead in convincing the Japanese that they have no "rights" in territory they have acquired by force of arms.

"The Japanese will be ten times as hard to lick as Hitler," said Mr. Hochberg in his talk here—an assertion that will be well to keep in mind in moments of over-optimism.

And then again, maybe it would be better to "swap horses in the middle of the stream" than to stay in the middle of the stream.

Mr. Baruch goes on the job with no title and no salary—as he never was much of a politician.

MR. BARUCH'S LATEST ASSIGNMENT

Work Stoppages and Riots Help Enemies Bolster Home Morale

By MAX HILL

OUR PROBLEMS at home—accented recently by work stoppages and riots—are the best propaganda the Axis has to use against us.

They are doing their battles with our troops. Neither the Germans nor the Japanese have victories with which to bolster home morale.

But through our troubles at home their adroit propagandists are able to encourage the rank and file to ever more desperate efforts.

It is unfortunate that we continue to feed them ready-made criticism because in the long run the cost is going to be in American lives and materials.

Just prior to the war, a minor strike or disturbance in America was worth between one and two columns of copy in a Tokyo newspaper. The basic theme was that we were divided, that we could not work as a unit. The situation has not changed.

Japan's greatest strength is at home. Her people have been taught that they must co-operate willingly—that the life of the individual is as nothing compared with the state and emperor.

Not many months before the war, preparations were being made in Tokyo for air raid shelters. The program was dropped. It was decided that every man, woman and child in Tokyo's 7,000,000 inhabitants should stay above ground and fight fires should there be a raid.

This is the sort of philosophy we are combatting. The war itself against such determined peoples is difficult enough without a divided home front.

IT CANNOT be that Russia does not know the plans of her Allies, Great Britain and the United States.

Therefore, the special communique broadcast from Moscow must be considered as a trump card in the propaganda campaign which the United Nations now are waging so successfully against the Germans.

She asks for a second front, "without which victory is impossible."

Hitler was right so many times in his strategy it must have seemed to him that he could not be wrong. But his miscalculation of Russia's strength has sapped the life blood of Germany to a point that it has become our margin of eventual victory.

The war in Russia would seem to be now in a sort of stalemate; but two long and difficult years have passed since Hitler announced his determination to crush the Russians, perhaps in six weeks.

If Russia had not had her magnificent and undisclosed strength, the world most likely would now be at the mercy of Hitler, Tojo and Mussolini.

Her contribution is so great that she is more than justified in her present appeal for a second front in Europe. Russia's losses have been severe, but they have not weakened her as much as those suffered by Nazi Germany.

The Russian figures, as announced in the special communique, show that German dead, wounded and captured total 6,400,000 men. And in addition, the Germans have used or lost huge quantities of war materials which they otherwise would be using against America.

Both President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull of the state department used the occasion to give unstinted praise to the Russians. The president's message to Premier Josef Stalin had the note of confidence which has become increasingly evident in recent weeks among leaders of the United Nations. He said:

"The growing might of the combined forces of all the United Nations . . . testifies to the spirit of unity and sacrifice necessary for our ultimate victory."

It is essential for the welfare of all concerned that we give the Russians the utmost in co-operation and aid.

One Man's Opinion

—By WALTER KIERNAN

THREE great scientific discoveries have come out of Washington recently: (1) That potatoes can be shipped without refrigeration to save ice; (2) That the potatoes will be a complete loss; (3) So will the ice that was saved.

* * *

Had it worked we would have thousands of pounds of ice to put away for next winter but alas—failure is too often the only reward of patient research.

* * *

Either the Office of Defense transportation or the Interstate Commerce Commission (they can fight it out for the credit) gave the order to cease and desist icing potato cars.

* * *

The immediate result was the spoilage of a hundred carloads of potatoes en route to the east which hadn't seen a potato in weeks.

* * *

Anyway now we are working on an idea for rolling potatoes from the field to the consumer using only round potatoes and throwing away all those of odd shape.

* * *

Our plan is to save not only ice but wear and tear on railroad equipment.

Farmer's Diary

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

GAMBLING

IN THE SMOKER of a railroad coach, some years ago, I saw four traveling men playing cards. It was about 4 o'clock on a warm afternoon. The game grew weary and uninteresting. Suddenly the fat man with horn-rimmed glasses yawned and said to the other three, "Let's play for stakes!"

"What for?" asked the thin, gray, tall one.

"I'm satisfied to play it high. It's more fun," said the third, a stocky red-faced man, filled with confidence.

The fourth, quietly turning his large suit case on end, took out a new deck of cards, and made ready.

The new game took on marvelous interest. Eyes flashed toward each opponent, to interpret from his face what his hand might be. Surprise, satisfaction or disappointment flitted over one face and then another. Bills of various sizes grew in numbers on some piles, while others decreased. The fat man's cash became exhausted and he wrote checks to cover losses. The quiet man who had upended his suitcase, took in the biggest stack of bills and checks.

The game grew so interesting that men from other coaches came to watch. Soon the compartment was crowded. Even the conductor stopped, looked on intensely interested for a moment, then went on. The fat man was the heaviest loser, but he shook the hand of his quiet opponent—"You're clever! I've lost, but the fun was worth it. I hope to see you again."

From that instance—the only such gambling game I ever witnessed—I can readily see how men will sit and play through the long hours of the night. There is always another chance to win—the last hand may be the lucky one.

I am a gambler too. Every farmer is. Sometimes the weather man sits across the table, sullen and determined. My hand looks favorable until he plays his trump—but I had my fling and even chose the price. The corn I planted June 16th in the afternoon will mature and produce a splendid crop—if frost doesn't catch it prematurely and freeze every blade with the grain still far from ripe. The soybeans sowed last week on a 20-acre field cost a little fortune, but should the beans mature, be combined and cribbed, I shall reap ten fold. Wheat, this fall, may be infested by the fly, seed is high, labor hardly possible—yet I have engaged the wheat and fertilizer to make the plunge. We have bought our little farm, and gambled on having health and a job to pay for it.

Should we lose, we would not let our children down, but take another chance, when the odds were even, and do our best to win. We enjoy the game.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Worried By Russia's Reaction On Failure to Attack Across Channel

WASHINGTON—It is no secret that today's biggest worry among high-up officials is Russia's reaction to current Allied strategy and the delay in establishing a second front in western Europe.

For 18 solid months Stalin has been requesting an Allied invasion straight across the English channel to the heart of the enemy. He has never been too sympathetic with operations in the Mediterranean, has regarded them as detours, has pointed out that the job of an army was to engage the enemy and that the way to engage the bulk of the Nazi army was by an attack in France, not by fighting Italians and six or eight divisions of the Afrika Corps.

When Stalin has been reminded of the tremendous losses sure to result from bucking the bristling guns and hidden mines Hitler has placed along the French coast, he has pointed to the millions of Russians lost in battle.

Therefore, it takes no mind-reader or even asute Ambassador Joseph E. Davies to know that our present "peculiar amphibious operations" in the Mediterranean must get a sour reaction inside the Kremlin.

Moreover, it needs no report from Joe Davis to guess that this sourness is sure to be taken out chiefly against the British. Real fact is that Stalin has never trusted Churchill. He also remembers the old Clivedon Set proposals that Germany be encouraged to attack Russia, so the two countries could bleed each other white.

So naturally, suspicion must linger that the British would like to see Germany and Russia continue bearing the main brunt of battle, both weakening each other, and leaving the British in a position to follow their traditional policy of holding the balance of power after the war is over.

That is why recent conferences between Foreign Minister Molotoff and the Jap Ambassador in Moscow are being watched so carefully.

Mission to Moscow.

ONLY insiders know how delicate was Joe Davies' latest "Mission to Moscow." What he talked to Stalin about cannot be revealed for some time, except to say that his main job was to smooth out certain suspicions which might disrupt Allied relations.

But entirely aside from a ticklish Allied-Russian situation, Davies also was in a delicate spot with the U. S. ambassador to Russia, Admiral William Standley. For his mission made it appear that Roosevelt didn't trust Standley, so had to send a special envoy to Moscow.

One year ago, sincere, tough-talking Admiral Standley vigorously resented Willkie's going over his head in Moscow, and discussed with Davies whether he should resign. Davies urged him to return to Moscow.

So, on his recent trip, when Stalin invited Davies to stay at a special palace for distinguished visitors, Davies declined. He stayed at the American embassy, took pains to report to Admiral Standley first of all, endeavored to work through the embassy. However, he also had a frank, friendly talk with Standley in which he said:

"Now, Admiral, it will be a help if you will let me talk to Molotoff and Stalin alone. They don't like you, and you can't really expect them to, after the way you spoke out publicly against their handling of Lend-Lease publicity. After all, you know what would have happened to Ambassador Litvinoff in Washington if he had criticized Hull and Roosevelt publicly. He would have been kicked out. And coming at a time when Ribbentrop was reported making peace offers to Molotoff, I can understand their feeling about you. I know you were taken in by some of the newspaper boys who wanted you to make that statement. But just the same you won't be offended I hope, if I see Stalin and Molotoff alone."

Note: Admiral Standley had told American newsmen in Russia that the Russian government had not properly informed the Russian people regarding the help given them by U. S. Lend-Lease supplies.

Joe and Joe.

AS A RESULT of this conversation, Admiral Standley went to the Kremlin, made the formal introduction to Molotoff and Stalin, then bowed out. Actually, the Russians sent word that "Mr. Davies is an old friend of ours and needs no introduction," but Davies insisted that Standley make the introduction anyway.

Later Standley and Davies attended a lunch given by Molotoff in honor of the British ambassador, Sir Archibald Clark-Kerr, who is genuinely popular in Moscow. Churchill is not popular. He is too blunt, and somewhat like sea-dog Standley, rubs the Russians the wrong way. But Sir Archibald edits a newspaper in the Russian language published by the British embassy and has been making real friends. At the luncheon he made a speech in which, after paying tribute to the Russians, he said:

"Of course, we have our small misunderstandings. But these are nothing compared with our big objective. Sometimes when I bring my basket of fish to Molotoff, I can't sell them all. One or two of the fish are bad, and I have to take them back and get some good fish. But that's the way it is in life."

"One Way Street."

THE SPEECH made an excellent impression. After lunch, several of the top commissars sat talking with Davies and Standley, when the blunt admiral spoke up to Molotoff.

"Commissar," he said, "I think you must remember that our relations should be a two-way street. When we give you information, you've got to give us information in return."

Standley was referring to Russian reluctance to permit our military observers to visit the front lines and to give them data on Russian war plans. Whether he was right or wrong, his statement at that particular moment struck a sour note. Sensing this, Davis remarked to Molotoff:

"I want you to know Commissar, that the American people assume and understand that our co-operation in this war is all for our mutual benefit."

"Just the same," piped up Admiral Standley, "our relations should not be a one-way street."

Shortly after this, the hard-working, undiplomatic admiral sent the state department his resignation from the field of diplomacy, effective next autumn.

Dave Boone Says:

ONE of those Americans who don't get the publicity freely showered on more trivial folks got a little attention the other day. He is Lewis W. Rodenberg of Jacksonville, Ill., a blind printer. Blind since childhood this remarkable man also made himself an accomplished musician and poet.

He wrote four-part music in braille, plays the cello and piano like a wizard and is director of a big printing school for the blind. He's been awarded the Migel medal for outstanding service for the sightless. Anybody who complains about handicaps and the lack of opportunity ought to give a thought to Lew Rodenberg.

I'd like to know how the OPA heads pick out these fellows they select to enforce the gas regulations. The impression is that they line up a lot of candidates and choose those who have the crudest, most objectionable and most offensive approach.

There must be a few OPA boys around who are polite, understanding and judicious in temperament, but they're being carefully rejected for any contact with the public. Some of those agents who are questioning autoists shouldn't be allowed to be at large without muzzles.

Timely Editorial

Mark Twain In Russia.

Confidence in Russia as a post-war friend is considerably bolstered by the report that the 2,000,000th copy of Mark Twain's works has just been issued in the Soviet. The American humorist is second only to Jack London as the favorite American author in the land of steppes and struggles. We could have no better ambassador than the Missourian who made millions laugh.

The American conception of the Russian, as one addicted only to the tragedy and sorrow characterized by Russian literature, will have to undergo change along with many other erroneous beliefs. The Volga boatman has a sense of humor.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

Want a Fine Horse for $50?—Go to Africa; Bridle, Blanket, Saddle and Horseboy Included.

SOMEWHERE IN AFRICA—(By Wireless)—You know me when I get started traveling—I just can't ever seem to stop. So I came back to North Africa from the Tropics by the longest possible route I could find—via Egypt.

It's a long haul. It takes you clear across Africa, down the Nile, and back along the whole Mediterranean shore. It takes you into parts of deepest Africa that few Americans had even seen before this war. It makes you realize more than ever how completely global, poking into the farthest and tiniest recesses, this war really is.

Nearly everywhere you go you find some American troops, from mere handsful up into the thousands. They are not fighting troops, they are the builders and maintainers of airdromes, who sort of catch our multitudes of airplanes and toss them on to the next station on their long haul from America to Russia, India, China.

The men who staff these remote landing fields up and down Africa live a strange and almost inconceivable kind of existence. They are completely divorced from life as they knew it back home, and from the war, and from all normal associations with people of their own kind. And yet, because of the airplane and the radio, they keep in close mental touch with the world.

At the most weirdly isolated places they get mail from home quicker than we do in North Africa. They set themselves up in permanent quarters more homelike than ours in the north. They are in no danger, but they must bear the great crosses of heat, isolation and monotony. On the whole they don't seem to mind it much.

AT ONE certain field our men have built a big permanent camp. Overnight transients are assigned to wooden cots in open barracks. Each block has toilets and showers, and it's wonderful to get under that water after a hard day of flying. At the back of each block is a big electric refrigerator, and it is filled with scores of bottles of cold water. You drink continuously in these hot places.

There is only one white woman—a British nurse—within 200 miles. All gasoline has to be trucked 375 miles from the end of the nearest railroad. And yet things aren't so bad. Listen—

Beautiful Arabian horses abound there. Before the Americans came, you could buy one for $20. Now the price has gone up to $50 but even so you've got a horse that would cost you $500 or $1,000 back home. There are 175 Americans in this camp, and 50 of them own their own horses.

Down there when you buy a horse you don't just buy a horse. You also buy (all included in the $50) the bridle, the blanket, the saddle, the horseboy, and the horseboy's whole family!

Our men have built a big three-sided barn. One one side are the horses' stalls. At the end the feed and saddles are kept. Along the other side the horseboys and their families live.

A horseboy does nothing whatever except feed and care for your horse. It's his craft. You wouldn't think of asking him to do anything else. He sticks with that horse as long as the horse lives, and if he doesn't like the new owner, professional ethics make him stick with you regardless.

And are you wondering about the upkeep of an Arabian horse and horseboy and the horseboy's whole family? Well, I raised that question and discovered that the total cost of feed for the horse, pay for the boy and food for his whole family is—10 cents a day. Horsemen, here's your paradise.

THE commanding officer at this place is Lieut. George Hester, of Tubac, Ariz. He spent five years with American Airlines in the states and with Pan American Airways in Central America before coming over here. He likes his work and finds the life interesting and full.

For instance, he was telling me about a recent huge conclave of chiefs, a sort of annual review climaxed by a parade of 5000 horsemen. As commandant, Lieutenant Hester was asked to sit with the big chief and review the parade.

He says it was one of the most moving sights he had ever seen. The horses were flamboyantly decked out, some of them in red velvet pants, and a thousand of the 5000 horsemen wore coats of mail that had been handed down right from the day of the Crusaders.

These Negroes are mostly Mohammedans. They seem to have a tinge of Arabian in them, and they speak a language that is incomprehensible to the coastal Negroes.

These people in the heart of Africa know little about what goes on in the world. The average native knows vaguely that there is a war on, but he can't conceive of its proportions because he actually doesn't know how big the world is. His conception of the Allies is merely that England is big and American generous. He knows little about the oceans. He knows roughly that America is somewhere west and Cairo somewhere east, near Mecca. He has never heard of Japan.

I think maybe he's got something there.

Richland county grand jury convened nearly an hour later than its scheduled opening today because of difficulty in filling the panel.

Mrs. Marguerite Troll was called to substitute for her husband, Earle, whose name had been drawn but who was excused. Dimon Herring and Howard Silcott were also summoned as last-minute jurors.

Of the 25 names drawn for jury duty, seven were excused, two were in the army and one was not located. Necessity for farm labor proved the general excuse, as many drawn were farmers.

Vinson Turns Down Increase For Million Railroaders.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— An informed source said today that stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson has issued an order setting aside an emergency board's recommendation of an 8-cent hourly increase for more than a million non-operating railway employes.

Vinson's order, it was learned from this source said the emergency board may reconsider its award on the basis of a memorandum he will prepare within ten days.

However, a legal complication arose because the board has been disbanded and no one would say immediately how it would be legally reconvened unless by President Roosevelt himself. It was appointed originally by Dr. William M Leiserson, chairman of the National Railway Labor panel.

SENATORS VOTE HALF BILLION TO SUBSIDIES

Committee Approves Taft's Compromise Proposal on OPA Plan.

(By International News Service)
WASHINGTON — The senate banking committee today adopted a compromise proposal under which President Roosevelt's administration would be allowed $500,000,00 to pay roll-back subsidies on meat, butter and coffee.

The proposal, in the form of an amendment to the commodity credit corporation bill, was accepted by a voice vote as the senate debated the crucial question of using subsidies to hold the line on food prices

The banking committee amendment was sponsored by Sen. Robert A. Taft (R) of Ohio. Taft originally proposed to allow but $250,000,000 for subsidies to help keep down prices but the committee doubled the figure.

Sen. John H. Bankhead (D.) Ala., supporting the administration on the subsidy issue, approved the revised Taft amendment, but declared he did not know whether the administration would approve it.

"The administration wanted $1,000,000,000," Taft said. "They would, of course, prefer $500,000,000 to nothing. There will be a fight on the floor with many opposed to any subsidies. I do not know whether the committee amendment will be adopted."

Some administration senators construed the banking committee action as a partial victory because it recognized and approved the principle of subsidies.

The Taft amendment also authorized continuation of subsidies to meet increased transportation costs due to the war and for production of strategic and critical materials for war purposes.

Taft estimated that $995,000,000 could be expended in one year for subsidies under his amendment. This includes $320,000,000 now being paid for transportation and strategic material subsidies, $175,000,000 by the Commodity Credit corporation, and the special $500,000,000 fund for the OPA.

TO MOTHERS AND FATHERS WHO ARE COUNTING THE MINUTES

EVERY minute drags when you are waiting for your boy to come home on furlough.

You recall when he was a tow-headed little fellow playing soldier in the backyard. It was play then, with mother's first aid always at hand to soothe scratched knees or bruised elbows and wipe away tears

It seems only yesterday—now he's a real soldier

You wonder whether he has grown since he has been away—whether he still has that shy smile you always loved—whether he says his prayers at night as you taught him

Pride swells in your heart as you wait for the train. You have a thousand questions to ask and every minute with him will be precious.

Erie and other American railroads know how precious these minutes are to mothers and fathers. Moving 1,750,000 troops a month—more than 50,000 a day—brings the railroads close to problems of the boys in the service.

Half of all Pullman cars and almost 3000 day coaches are required now for troop movements alone. This makes it difficult to take care of soldiers on furlough and civilian travel, too.

But the American railroads are handling this tremendous task with the cooperation of patriotic citizens who are discontinuing all non-essential train travel These citizens realize that space they occupy may prevent some mother and father from spending precious moments with the little fellow who once played soldier in the backyard.

Hints on Making Refrigerator Last For Duration

By GLADYS DEGNER
(AP Features Writer)

That refrigerator you might have bought won't be yours for a while! The machines, metals, factories and labor that would have made it are now producing tanks, guns and engines necessary to freeze out the Axis.

That, Mrs. Housewife, is why you must make your old refrigerator last. Every saving, whether it's in the life of your refrigerator, in the fuel or energy used for operating it, or in the food you store, contributes to victory.

The best spot for your refrigerator is the coolest one—away from the sun, oven, radiators and steam pipes. Be sure it stands level and firm, with a space of at least 2½ inches in back and 8 to 12 inches at the top for the air to circulate and carry away the heat from the mechanical unit.

To save food, fuel and wear and tear on the machinery, keep the temperature no colder than 40 degrees and no warmer than 50. The way to do this is by not opening the door more than necessary.

No one need tell you a sure way of ruining the ice trays is to have the ice pick habit. You can make the removal of trays easy by not filling them to the brim. Water expands when it's frozen. Just as important—defrost regularly, before the ice is a quarter inch thick on the freezing unit.

Do a thorough cleaning job after each defrosting. Wash every part with warm water and soda. Rinse with a cloth wrung from clean water, and wipe each part dry. Mild soapsuds—never harsh soaps or scratchy cleaners — should take care of the outside daily. Wipe up all spilled foods at once, as they might stain the finish. Guard the rubber seal around the door from grease, dirt and spilled foods.

Some refrigerators need oiling; others don't. Follow the manufacturer's instructions, and always call the service man in case of trouble or need for repairs.

The Situation on Rayon

By DOROTHY ROE
(AP Fashion Editor)

If you have to get along with one new rayon dress next winter instead of two, you may be comforted to know that the extra one is going into a tire for an army bomber.

Growing military demand for heavy-duty rayon cord is cutting a large slice out of the American civilian wardrobe this year—and the slice is due to grow steadily larger, as the production of synthetic rubber increases.

Officials of the rayon industry estimate that of the probable total 1943 rayon production of about 630,000,000 pounds of all types, about 405,000,000 pounds will be available for civilian use. This represents a drop of about 29 per cent from the peacetime production of 573,000,000 pounds in 1941.

It is expected that some 150,000,000 pounds of viscose rayon cord will go into heavy army tires this year, with an eventual goal set by the war department of 206,000,000 pounds.

Of the remainder, 4 per cent of both viscose and acetate rayon is allocated for good neighbor export, and more than 30,000,000 pounds of the remainder for additional war needs.

Spun rayon yarn, the kind that is used to make fabrics which look like wool, is the least affected by wartime shortages. Of the total production of about 153,000,000 pounds, only about 15 per cent is needed for military uses.

Out of the approximate 405,000,000 pounds of rayon, expected to be available for civilian use this year, almost 30,000,000 pounds will go into hosiery and silk replacements, leaving some 375,000,000 pounds for all types of fabrics, including those used for lingerie, dresses, suits and accessories.

Here's What You'll Get.

Rayon fabrics for civilian wear have been drastically simplified, with only a few basic weaves available. In the spun rayon group, you will be able to purchase the following staple classics: gabardine, twills, men's wear suitings, flannels and tweed type fabrics.

Instead of the myriad rayon crepes and similar dressy fabrics formerly on the market, you will now find in the shops a smaller selection of weaves. The heavier rayon crepes are being eliminated in order to produce more yards with fewer pounds. Important in the summer fabric lineup are the following rayons: light-weight prints, rayon broadcloth, printed rayon jersey, staple sheers, faille, bengaline, shantung and linen-textured spun rayon fabrics.

All these are available in a wide range of colors and many striking prints. Some of the new wartime fabrics are even handsomer than their predecessors. The difficulty lies not in the quality but in the quantity available.

Consumer To Feel Pinch.

Thus far, consumers have hardly begun to feel the shortages, because of the existing reserve stocks carried by most stores and manufacturers. Wholesalers feel the pinch about six months after a shortage hits the raw material market. The individual consumer isn't aware of it until some six months later. Thus it takes about a year before reduced production of rayon yarn is evident on America's Main Street, and Mrs. Jones is shocked to find that she can't buy the same kind of dress she had last year, or that the shop has no more of her favorite fabric.

By next winter, manufacturers predict, wartime shortages will begin to be more evident to retail buyers. But it is hoped that by the savings effected through reduced yardage in dress designs, there will still be enough to go around.

Sgt. Earl J. Huston Takes Bride In Texas

SGT. EARL J. HUSTON of Shiloh, who is stationed in the tank division at Camp Hood, Tex., took as his bride, Miss Edith West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale West of Belmont, in an evening service June 17 in the First Presbyterian church, Temple, Tex.

For her wedding, the bride selected a two-piece aqua blue linen dress, trimmed with eyelet pockets and neckline. Her small hat was of aqua straw, with matching veil. Other accessories worn by the bride were white. Her shoulder corsage was comprised of yellow rose buds.

Mrs. Thomas H. Talbot, wife of the chaplain who officiated at the wedding, was matron of honor. She was attired in a frock of pink and white with white accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of carnations.

Sgt. Howard Bradley served as Sgt. Huston's best man.

The church was beautifully decorated with palms and tall baskets of white gladioli. Illumination was from tapers in white candelabra.

Sgt. Robert V. Lundis was soloist at the wedding. He sang "Because," accompanied by Cpl. Fred H. Norenberg at the organ. The traditional wedding marches were also played. During the ceremony Cpl. Norenberg played "I Love You Truly."

The new Mrs. Huston is a graduate of Belmont high school and Baldwin-Wallace college, class of 1940. She has been teaching in the Shiloh high school.

Ham Can Be Served In Many Ways

By BETSY NEWMAN

It's a game, this making our meat ration go as far as possible. I've always been interested in seeing how far I could make foods go. One time I bought a 24 (and a fraction) pound sack of flour and kept track of all the different things I made with it. They made an impressive list. I like to do the same with a piece of meat. It is surprising how many different kinds of dishes you can get out of a fair-sized piece of meat, ham for instance.

Today's Menu.

Roast Ham Scalloped Potatoes
Young Carrots and Peas
Watercress Lettuce Salad
Strawberry Shortcake Coffee

Roast Ham.

4 lb. end of ham
½ cup juice from spiced fruit
Or 1 tsp. whole cloves
¼ cup brown sugar
1 tsp. dry mustard

Wipe ham with a damp cloth and put it in roasting pan and into the oven which has been preheated to 300 degrees F. For "ovenized" ham allow about 20 minutes' cooking to the pound; for non-ovenized meat, allow at least 30 minutes a pound. An hour before the ham is to be done, pour over it the ½ cup spiced fruit juice and continue baking. Or take skin off, if it is still on, stick cloves in fat at intervals, then cover with brown sugar, then with mustard, and return to oven to finish roasting. Or take ¼ cup cider vinegar and ¼ cup water, add ½ cup brown sugar, some mixed spices or ½ teaspoon whole cloves, cook for 10 minutes, then pour mixture over ham and continue roasting.

Slice ham cold for next meal, also use in sandwiches. Make a ham omelet for lunch or dinner next, then serve some of the smaller, thin slices of ham on lima beans cooked in tomatoes. Diced and creamed the small pieces of ham are nice served over toast or baked potatoes; add a little dry mustard to the cream sauce for this. Small "chunks" are nice in scalloped potatoes. The small pieces of ham may also be cooked with rice. Here is the recipe:

Ham With Rice.

2 tbsps. ham fat
1 cup rice
2 cups boiling water
1 cup minced ham
2 tbsps. prepared mustard
2 tbsps. minced parsley

Heat fat, add rice and stir over low heat 3 minutes, then add water, bring to boiling point, cover and simmer over low heat about 15 minutes, until rice is tender and water is almost absorbed. Add ham and mustard and stir lightly with fork so as not to break rice and ham is thoroughly mixed through rice. Put in serving dish and sprinkle with parsley.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Dicky's eyes opened wide, and his lips formed an involuntary round O, as, I told myself amusedly, a startled small boy's might have done. He never loses his poise or shows any surprise when strangers are present. But he is distinctly off guard with me, and also with Katharine.

"What do you mean?" he asked. Then his mouth relaxed into a wide grin. "Oh, boy!" he exclamed. "Does dad want me to take on the job of meeting, and deflating, the 'Wilderness Woman,' if it's possible to deflate her?"

"Exactly," I said.

"He wants her to come up here then?" he asked. "I suppose she will be expecting to see you and Katharine here."

"That's the general idea," I replied. Father doesn't intend to let her know there's any hitch in her plot to have Katharine come to the Myers apartment alone at 2 o'clock. At the last minute, he's going to send a telegraph messenger with a wire saying Katharine is ill, and will have to keep the appointment the next night at the same time."

"But she won't, will she?" Dicky asked quickly.

To Trap Ruth.

"Father thinks not," I said. "He hopes to trap Ruth finally at her appointment at Hal Meredith's office tomorrow afternoon. But at 2-o'clock tomorrow morning when she gets that wire he expects her to come to the hotel and up to this apartment, using the facilities for getting here which Milner will afford her."

"Nice bird, Milner!" Dicky commented. "Will I ever be glad when I see the gyves upon his wrists!"

"You'll not be alone in your joy," I told him dryly. "Of course father could stop Ruth if he wished. But I think he wants her to come up for two reasons, one to let Milner believe that his pipe lines are working, the other, I really believe is an impish desire to have you deal with her in your own inimitable fashion. I told him about your memorable interview with Carolyn."

Dicky looked a bit abashed.

"Carolyn wasn't really fair game, poor kid!" he said, "although she did need a lathering, if ever a brat did. But I've always felt that I laid on the old hickory stick a bit too hard.

"But this baby,—this Ruth Hayes—this far famed 'Wilderness Woman;'" His voice fairly dripped venom, overlaid with the anticipation of a pleasurably sinister mission before him. "It certainly will be a pleasure to remove the cuticle from her, inch by inch." He leaned back in his chair, and looked around the living room of the balcony apartment, as if he were a general planning a campaign.

"Think I'll have dad plant a couple of his men on that balcony," he said. "The door will be bolted on this side, but I can easily slip the bolts if I wish."

"You think she will be bringing men with her?" I said breathlessly.

"Not in here," he replied. "She wouldn't be so crude. But it would be perfectly in accord with her style—and Milner's—to have a couple of strong arm beauties settling themselves on that balcony after she gets here, ready for any command she might give them."

Tests Window Bolts.

He rose and walked into the bedroom and I saw him testing the bolts on the windows leading to the balcony which had been reinforced after my experience with the gangster who once had spied upon me from there.

"These are all right," he said. "And that bolt on the camouflaged door is all right, although I imagine Dad's men will be in that suite. However, we'll take no chances. Now, the next question is, where are we going to park the girls?"

"Anywhere you please," Katharine said. "I have no desire to see or hear that woman, and I have full faith in your ability to deal with her."

Dicky made a deep bow, sweeping an imaginary plumed hat to the floor.

"Merci, madame!" he said. "In that case, the best thing for both of you would be to go into the bedroom, lock the door and go to sleep."

"Just a second," I said. "You're not going to park me anywhere."

Sleep Habits Should Be Consistent

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Many tots do not get nearly enough sleep in summer because they waken too early. Even some older children under ten or twelve get up too early. The lack of sufficient sleep grows more serious when, because of great heat, the child is put to bed late.

My special bullletin on "Sleep", to be had without cost by writing me in care of this paper enclosing a three-cent stamp on a self addressed envelope, considers this and other sleep problems in detail. My chart on desirable hours of sleep at various age levels may also be had in this way. Here are a few practical suggestions:

Find out from this chart how late your child must sleep in the morning in order to get as much sleep each night (including day nap) as he should.

Tell him just once, clearly, tonight that he must not get up tomorrow morning until you call for him or the clock rings. The latter is better, being more definite and dependable.

Be on hand when he is likely to awaken and want to get up. Let everything else go tomorrow morning and on subsequent mornings until this matter is settled permanently. It may take a week or two.

The moment he rises to his hands, knees or feet, spank him saying No just once and pushing him down if necessary. If he rises again right away spank him again. Proceed in this fashion till he stays down while you are right with him.

Then go outside his room with his door ajar so you can see him and he can't see you. Immediately smack him again should he rise. Continue with this treatment until he learns to obey. Be sure to do this without exception tomorrow morning and the next till he learns always to stay down until the bell rings. Say nothing about sleep. With the world so unattractive he will finally go back to sleep, provided there is no doubt in his mind that you can be relied on to be consistent. Don't begin this training until you are able to follow the instructions to the letter.

Hold your child under six or seven to a regular afternoon nap. Children over 6 or 7 who are very active or nervous should also be required to lie down and be quiet for an hour or two daily during the summer.

Q. My child two years old does not talk very much. He can say mamma, daddy and about a dozen words altogether.

A. He probably will talk enough in due time. Perhaps he has had so effective sign language which his parents obey, that he has not felt much need for formal language. He should spend more time with children his age or older and you should read a great deal to him. It might be wise to have his hearing tested by an expert.

Q. We should like to have our youngster now beginning speech learn to call us Daddy and Mother instead of by our first names. What is a good way?

A. Merely call each other Daddy and Mother in the child's presence and refer to each other in this fashion.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE
BY Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

NEARLY ALWAYS BEST

There is one opening lead which is nearly always the best to make against an opponent's suit contract, when possible, and which therefore justly ranks as the No. 1 combination in every standard table of leads. That is the lead of an ace-king combination. Only on the rarest of occasions should something else be led, if you have that top sequence. If you have the slightest doubt about the situation confronting you, that lead will generally give you a chance to look at the dummy and get your bearings without any appreciable risk of loss.

	♠ 8 6 2 ♥ Q 4 ♦ J 8 ♣ A K 10 7 5 4
♠ A K 7 4 ♥ A 8 7 2 ♦ A 5 ♣ 8 3 2	N W E S	♠ J 9 5 3 ♥ 9 6 3 ♦ Q 3 ♣ Q J 9 6

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Dbl	Rdbl	Pass
1 ♦	Dbl	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♦	Dbl	4 ♣	Pass
4 ♦	Dbl	5 ♣	Dbl
5 ♦	Dbl

North finally got wise to the fact that his partner was indulging in some crazy psychic bidding when he opened that deal with his 1-Club, and so passed the 5-Diamonds double, reckoning the side would probably be set plenty.

West, remembering his partner's double of the 5-Clubs, decided to lead that suit, which he did, his 8. The club A and K promptly furnished discards of South's two spades, and the diamond J was finessed to the A. Now the spade K got trumped by South, his diamond K dropped the last hostile trumps together, and he had only one more trick to lose, to the heart A, so that he made his contract.

If West had first laid down his spade K, he would have seen the situation, and would have refrained from leading clubs, making sure first that he scored two spade tricks and his heart A. By so doing, he would have beaten the contract two tricks.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ A Q 3 ♥ A 8 7 ♦ J 10 4 ♣ Q 7 5 2

	♠ K 8 2 ♥ 3 ♦ A 6 5 3 2 ♣ A 10 9 4

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

What is correct play of this deal at 4-Clubs by South, the spade J being led, and at 3-No Trumps by North after East leads the 6 of his partner's bid heart suit?

Hints on Making Refrigerator Last For Duration

By GLADYS DEGNER
(AP Features Writer)

That refrigerator you might have bought won't be yours for a while! The machines, metals, factories and labor that would have made it are now producing tanks, guns and engines necessary to freeze out the Axis.

That, Mrs. Housewife, is why you must make your old refrigerator last. Every saving, whether it's in the life of your refrigerator, in the fuel or energy used for operating it, or in the food you store, contributes to victory.

The best spot for your refrigerator is the coolest one—away from the sun, oven, radiators and steam pipes. Be sure it stands level and firm, with a space of at least 2½ inches in back and 8 to 12 inches at the top for the air to circulate and carry away the heat from the mechanical unit.

To save food, fuel and wear and tear on the machinery, keep the temperature no colder than 40 degrees and no warmer than 50. The way to do this is by not opening the door more than necessary.

No one need tell you a sure way of ruining the ice trays is to have the ice pick habit. You can make the removal of trays easy by not filling them to the brim. Water expands when it's frozen. Just as important—defrost regularly, before the ice is a quarter inch thick on the freezing unit.

Do a thorough cleaning job after each defrosting. Wash every part with warm water and soda. Rinse with a cloth wrung from clean water, and wipe each part dry. Mild soapsuds—never harsh soaps or scratchy cleaners—should take care of the outside daily. Wipe up all spilled foods at once, as they might stain the finish. Guard the rubber seal around the door from grease, dirt and spilled foods.

Some refrigerators need oiling; others don't. Follow the manufacturer's instructions, and always call the service man in case of trouble or need for repairs.

The Situation on Rayon

By DOROTHY ROE
(AP Fashion Editor)

If you have to get along with one new rayon dress next winter instead of two, you may be comforted to know that the extra one is going into a tire for an army bomber.

Growing military demand for heavy-duty rayon cord is cutting a large slice out of the American civilian wardrobe this year—and the slice is due to grow steadily larger, as the production of synthetic rubber increases.

Officials of the rayon industry estimate that of the probable total 1943 rayon production of about 630,000,000 pounds of all types, about 405,000,000 pounds will be available for civilian use. This represents a drop of about 29 per cent from the peacetime production of 573,000,000 pounds in 1941.

It is expected that some 150,000,000 pounds of viscose rayon cord will go into heavy army tires this year, with an eventual goal set by the war department of 206,000,000 pounds.

Of the remainder, 4 per cent of both viscose and acetate rayon is allocated for good neighbor export, and more than 30,000,000 pounds of the remainder for additional war needs.

Spun rayon yarn, the kind that is used to make fabrics which look like wool, is the least affected by wartime shortages. Of the total production of about 153,000,000 pounds, only about 15 per cent is needed for military uses.

Out of the approximate 405,000,000 pounds of rayon, expected to be available for civilian use this year, almost 30,000,000 pounds will go into hosiery and silk replacements, leaving some 375,000,000 pounds for all types of fabrics, including those used for lingerie, dresses, suits and accessories.

Here's What You'll Get.

Rayon fabrics for civilian wear have been drastically simplified, with only a few basic weaves available. In the spun rayon group, you will be able to purchase the following staple classics: gabardine, twills, men's wear suitings, flannels and tweed type fabrics.

Instead of the myriad rayon crepes and similar dressy fabrics formerly on the market, you will now find in the shops a smaller selection of weaves. The heavier rayon crepes are being eliminated in order to produce more yards with fewer pounds. Important in the summer fabric lineup are the following rayons: light-weight prints, rayon broadcloth, printed rayon jersey, staple sheers, faille, bengaline, shantung and linen-textured spun rayon fabrics.

All these are available in a wide range of colors and many striking prints. Some of the new wartime fabrics are even handsomer than their predecessors. The difficulty lies not in the quality but in the quantity available.

Consumer To Feel Pinch.

Thus far, consumers have hardly begun to feel the shortages, because of the existing reserve stocks carried by most stores and manufacturers. Wholesalers feel the pinch about six months after a shortage hits the raw material market. The individual consumer isn't aware of it until some six months later. Thus it takes about a year before reduced production of rayon yarn is evident on America's Main Street, and Mrs. Jones is shocked to find that she can't buy the same kind of dress she had last year, or that the shop has no more of her favorite fabric.

By next winter, manufacturers predict, wartime shortages will begin to be more evident to retail buyers. But it is hoped that by the savings effected through reduced yardage in dress designs, there will still be enough to go around.

Sgt. Earl J. Huston Takes Bride In Texas

SGT. EARL J. HUSTON of Shiloh, who is stationed in the tank division at Camp Hood, Tex., took as his bride, Miss Edith West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale West of Belmont, in an evening service June 17 in the First Presbyterian church, Temple, Tex.

For her wedding, the bride selected a two-piece aqua blue linen dress, trimmed with eyelet pockets and neckline. Her small hat was of aqua straw, with matching veil. Other accessories worn by the bride were white. Her shoulder corsage was comprised of yellow rose buds.

Mrs. Thomas H. Talbot, wife of the chaplain who officiated at the wedding, was matron of honor. She was attired in a frock of pink and white with white accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of carnations.

Sgt. Howard Bradley served as Sgt. Huston's best man.

The church was beautifully decorated with palms and tall baskets of white gladioli. Illumination was from tapers in white candelabra.

Sgt. Robert V. Lundis was soloist at the wedding. He sang "Because," accompanied by Cpl. Fred H. Norenberg at the organ. The traditional wedding marches were also played. During the ceremony Cpl. Norenberg played "I Love You Truly."

The new Mrs. Huston is a graduate of Belmont high school and Baldwin-Wallace college, class of 1940. She has been teaching in the Shiloh high school.
